Accordionist Brilliant Player

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Leo Aquino, who played an accordion recital in the McPherson Playhouse Sunday afternoon, is an unusually brilliant accordionist.

Such a player, one who treats his accordion as the serious musical instrument it becomes in his hands, improves the status of accordions everywhere.

Leo Aquino's technical superiority and tasteful musical arrangements almost completely overcame the limitations of his accordion's reedy tone and breathing action.

The audience enthusiastically applauded all his numbers and forced him to return for two encores. Some of his more delicate pieces showed how sincere and thoughtful a musician he is.

HAUNTING PIECE

Perhaps the most haunting piece was Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Oriental Romance" which emphasized the clarity and sweet tone of the high notes.

Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso" particularly in the scale passages, showed to advantage his amazing manual dexterity. Remarkably articulate for an instrument so constructed were the trills in Mozart's "Minuet in D" and the staccato notes and rhythmic emphasis in Bach's "Gigue."

As an arranger he brought out the strong discordant chords of Sibelius' "Valse Triste" and his own composition "Reflections of Spain" was a well-executed example of music most suitable to the accordion.

Dancers from the Florence Clough Dance Studio who made up the rest of the program, suffered throughout the embarrassment of sadly inadequate piano accompaniment.

Janet Purcell danced "Clair de Lune" with accuracy and some skill but her tendency to a rather heavy interpretation of the mood was perhaps, accentuated by the short straight tunic she wore.

With Julie Cox, she danced a pretty duet, "Le Papillon et la Rose," which was much enhanced by appropriately bright costumes.

The Rose danced beautifully but the butterfly, though she moved with grace, tended to hover rather menacingly.

Several of the girls who took part in "Ballet Blanche," particularly those who were featured, danced very well; but the difficulty of working on so limited a stage made the ensemble look rather untidy at times.

The glittering military tap-dance depended for its success on precision in steps and formations.

The nervousness or lack of skill in one or two of the dancers, deprived this dance of the necessary precision despite the energetic efforts of most of the dancers.

The program was under the auspices of the Victoria Musical Arts Society.

Defensive Driving Course Set

One in every five drivers will be involved in a car accident within the next 12 months.

For most of these drivers it will be their first accident. So a good driving record is no guarantee against mishaps, Reg. Mylrea, co-ordinator of adult classes, said today.

For this reason, the evening division of the Greater Victoria School Board is launching Wednesday a defensive driving course.

The first of the four weekly classes will be held in Room 203 at Oak Bay Junior High School and will start at 7:30 p.m. Cost of the course is $8 and registrations will be accepted at the door.

Some of the questions the sessions will deal with:

What to do when a tire blows? What is a preventable accident? What are the six defences against the two-car crash? What to do to avoid an intersection collision?

Several films are included in the program.

Highways To Declassify Mt. Newton

The department of highways wants to declassify Mount Newton Cross Road, between Patricia Bay highway and East Saanich Road, as a secondary highway.

The department has informed Central Saanich council the road should revert to municipal control.

At the same time, it indicated that it was prepared to reclassify as a secondary highway the route from Patricia Bay Highway to Keating Cross Road by way of Island View Road, Saanich Cross Road and Central Saanich Road.

"We are strongly opposed to taking over Mount Newton Cross Road," said Coun. Tom Michell, chairman of the public works committee.

He said the matter would be discussed further with the highways department.

350 at Recital Of 20th Century Church Music

More than 350 men, women and children attended a recital of 20th Century church music in Christ Church Cathedral Thursday night.

"Purpose of the recital was to reflect modern and even unusual trends in church music," said Richard Proudman, organist and choirmaster.

"People of all ages attended and the majority seemed to like what they heard."

Driver Suspended For Eight Months

Frank Leibel, 1387 Hillside, Friday was fined $500 and had his licence suspended for eight months when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Police investigating an accident at Bay Street and Cedar Hill Road Thursday evening noticed the accused driving in an erratic manner, the court was told.

He was followed and arrested. The Crown referred to a previous similar conviction in 1961 but did not charge him as a second offender.

mineral rights reference to the Supreme Court which involved only B.C. because the federal government did not press the matter against the Maritime Provinces or others with coastal lines.

He said despite criticism of his bookkeeping methods "who ends up in good financial shape, Ottawa or British Columbia?"

"It's certainly not Ottawa when they're putting on those taxes."

HEED HIS LESSON

Mr. Bennett said British Columbians should heed his history lesson "and I hope B.C. will never allow itself to be led by fuzzy thinkers again."

He added that he would "have more to say on this later" but indicated it would be at some subsequent speech in B.C. rather than at the two-day federal-provincial conference of finance ministers in Ottawa next week.

Mr. Bennett cut off reporters' questions to dismiss them because he said he had an appointment with his treasury board, currently reviewing proposed B.C. departmental expenditures for the next budget.

Earlier, Attorney-General Robert Bonner also criticized Mr. Sharp's indication there would be tax increases soon.

Mr. Bonner said they would be inflationary in themselves by "raising the cost of government."

Instead, he said, the federal government should actually cut back some of its current expenditures and not just trim proposed increases in spending programs.

A prime method of achieving this would be to cut back the number of federal civil servants, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation employees and defence department headquarters staff, he said.

Mr. Bonner estimated a 15 per cent reduction in personnel could be achieved over a period of a year by simply not replacing government employees who leave the service.

Tax Boost Awaits Talks

Former MP Granted New Trial

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvon Dupuis, a former Liberal member of Parliament, was granted a new trial Friday by the Quebec Court of Appeal after having been convicted 18 months ago for influence-peddling in an attempt to get a racetrack established in the province.

Two justices of the three-man appeal court agreed that the former minister without portfolio should have another trial while the third judge ruled in favor of acquittal.

Dupuis, 40, first elected to the Commons for St. Jean-Berville-Napierville in 1958, was appointed minister without portfolio in Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet in February, 1964.

He left the cabinet in January, 1965, at the request of Mr. Pearson after the prime minister saw a preliminary RCMP report on allegations against him. He was defeated in the federal election later that year.

Dupuis subsequently was charged and convicted at Sherbrooke, Que., in April, 1966, of accepting $10,000 in 1961 in return for his influence in support of a group seeking to set up a racetrack in St. Johns, Que. He was fined $5,000 or a year's imprisonment by Mr. Justice Evender Veilleux.

The appeal court took the case under advisement last March after a two-day presentation by defence lawyers that called for acquittal on grounds that the charges against Dupuis were not specific enough.

The defence also said the testimony of the main Crown witness—St. Johns chiropractor Roch Deslauriers—had been "lame and contradictory" and had created a "hostile climate" toward the accused.

Mr. Justice G. R. W. Owen and Mr. Justice Andre Taschereau agreed that Dupuis should be granted a new trial while Mr. Justice George H. Montgomery, in a minority report, said he should be acquitted outright.

Big Bidder at Galleries 'Sorry,' but Can't Pay

NEW YORK (AP) — An art buyer says through his lawyer that he's "sorry" but he can't pay for 10 paintings on which he successfully bid $467,775 at the Parke-Bernet Galleries last Oct. 26.

The buyer was identified as Hunter Galloway, who resides in midtown Manhattan. He was a "mystery" bidder, unknown to art auctioneers and dealers, but no questions were asked until recently, when payment was not made to the gallery.

However, Galloway's lawyer, John M. Whicher, said Friday: "Mr. Galloway doesn't have the money to pay for the pictures, he doesn't have the resources to raise the money, and there's not much he can do except say he's sorry."

Galloway said he had no comment.

Whicher also said: "In all honesty we thought he would be able to get some time for the payment and during that period might be able to arrange a resale and with the proceeds end up with one picture he particularly wanted."

Usually, payments by successful bidders are made within 10 days or two weeks.

The works on which Galloway bid included a $250,000 Cezanne; another Cezanne for $40,000; three Chagalls and paintings by Dufy, Vlamink, Rousult, Manzu and Diego Rivera.

BLOOD WEDDING WORTH SEEING

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Bastion Theatre's Studio production of Garcia Lorca's "Blood Wedding," which opened Friday night, is well worth seeing.

Director Peter Mannering chose this difficult poetic drama because he wished to expose both actors and audiences to good, but unfamiliar plays.

Yet another variation on the age-old ballad theme of a bride running away on her wedding night, the play is made distinctive by its Spanish setting, beautifully evoked by appropriate guitar music, and poetic symbolism which is not too subtle for the average playgoer to appreciate.

In "Blood Wedding," 1933, there is a clear echo of Synge's elegiac "Riders to the Sea," 1906, but the Spanish play lacks some of the poignancy of the Irish drama. Its action is spread over several families and moves from scene to scene whereas Synge's is set in one room and centred entirely on one bereaved family.

This difference arises because in Garcia's play the enemy of man is man, whereas in Synge's, the enemy is the mighty sea.

Dark turbulent waters that drag one away unwilling, symbolize deep passion throughout this play. The songs, the lullaby sung to the baby and the bride's description of her overriding passion, all hark back to this symbol.

The bride, a girl "caressed by fire of passion" describes her lover as "a dark river choked with brush that brought near me the undertone of its rushes," and explains that she sought "children, land and health" from the hero, "a little bit of water" to her burning soul.

By the dark turbulent water stood a horse, afraid to drink of it, and this is the horse that Leonardo rides throughout the play. In this way the poetic symbolism becomes even more an integral part of the action.

Marketa Mares' complete immersion in her character of the tempestuous passion-torn, Spanish beauty is fascinating to watch; and, through her shrouding veils, Jo Palfrey, symbolizing Death, is delightful in her witty insinuating characterization.

The other symbolic character, the Moon, was played with dramatic intensity by John Heath, who also designed the clever space-saving sets; but his strong voice was over-vibrant for expressing the cold passion of the silver-white-moon.

Vivienne Chadwick as the mother, eaten up with bitterness, strong in her tragedy, determined in her righteousness, was wholly convincing for most of the play; but her denunciation of the bride's family became shrill and over-dramatic and, at times, her pace seemed to slow while she sought the words.

WRONGED WOMAN

Singing was essential to so poetic a play. A lusty bridal song was provided by the group of young woodcutters who also added joy to the wedding festivities and pathos to the search through the forest.

Leonardo's wife, Barbara Dunn, combined the natural timidity of a loving wife with the defiant insistence of a wronged woman, looked beautiful and sang in a pleasing husky voice.

A frighteningly stormy, turbulent and virile Leonardo was played by Barry Grimshaw but this character lacked depth in the more tender, poetic passages.

Kay Howard while lively and unselfconscious in all her movements was perhaps a little skittish for a servant woman of the age she portrayed and not wholly successful in her singing role.

Tax Hike Claimed Bitter Pill

By The Canadian Press
Business and industrial leaders have called Finance Minister Sharp's announcement of a tax increase a surprise everyone expected and a bitter pill no one wants to swallow.

In Montreal and Toronto, hubs of Canada's stock exchanges, brokers, investment dealers and businessmen said the increase was bothersome, but predicted it would help short and long-term investment.

Any increase in corporation and personal taxes should be about evenly balanced by advantages of a better bond market and stronger long-term stability, Montreal analysts said.

In Toronto, construction industry spokesmen said the increase should not be on corporations. W. G. Connelly, president of the National House Builders' Association, said the capital market "has been bad enough this year."

"A corporation tax would create a further shortage of capital," he said, adding that Canadians will be reluctant to accept any increase unless they are shown clearly that the new measures are part of a co-ordinated plan to combat inflation.

"We need assurance that there is an over-all scheme. We have had too many patching jobs that have affected our industry; the door has been open one day and closed the next. If it gets that way for the whole economy, God help us."

S. D. C. Chutter, general manager of the Canadian Construction Association, took the same view.

Investment in plant and machinery by Canadian industry has been down this year, and if corporation taxes go up, the volume of private investment will be reduced still further.

Alastair McKichan, general manager of the Retail Council of Canada, called the increases a necessary evil "because obviously something of this nature was needed to stop their inflationary spiral."

Released U.S. Sergeants Divided on War's Value

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Three U.S. Army sergeants, released from Communist captivity in Vietnam, left for Washington today after spending the night in Beirut. One repudiated anti-war statements he had made in Hanoi. Another stood behind his.

The three men — James E. Jackson of Talcott, W. Va., Daniel Lee Pitzer of Spring Lake, N.C., and Edward R. Johnson of Seaside, Calif. — were put aboard a Pan American airliner due in Washington at 10:30 p.m. EST after stops in Rome, Paris and New York.

The men were flown to Beirut Sunday from Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, aboard a Czechoslovak airliner after a ceremony Saturday at which they were turned over to Thomas Hayden, representing an American peace committee. Hayden is travelling with them to the United States, Pan American said.

Sgt. Johnson, who was reported ill with dysentery and malnutrition, was quoted by the Beirut newspaper Al Bayrak as denying that he had been brainwashed and said: "I am going back to the war when duty calls me."

"I said what I said in Hanoi under pressure and I didn't mean any of it," he was quoted as saying. "I am an American. . . I don't think my brain is so dirty that somebody has to wash it for me."

However, Al Bayrak said Pitzer told its reporter at the airport: "I meant everything I said in Hanoi. I am against war and I think the Americans made a mistake in getting involved in it."

Pitzer was quoted as saying: "When my plane was hit while I was bombing North Vietnam I bailed out and I was caught on the ground by an armed Vietnamese girl. She took me to a command post where they showed me pictures of civilian targets and schools hit by American bombs. I was impressed."

"Since then I have hated war. When Hanoi asked me to give my opinion about the war publicly, I spoke from deep in my heart."

Jackson said only that he was going on to Prague and then to meet his family in the United States.

GUARD AIRPORT
Beirut airport was under heavy security for the departure.

The U.S. embassy said the three Americans asked to be disembarked from the Czech plane in Beirut Sunday for rest and medical attention.

Because of his illness, Johnson had not attended the release ceremony in Phnom Penh, but Jackson and Pitzer appeared and made statements of thanks to the Viet Cong and to Hayden. However, newspaper men were not allowed to talk to them.

Hayden told Western newspaper men in Phnom Penh they were kept away from the three sergeants because they would "exploit" them. Hayden and Communist officials contended that any embarrassing questions put to the sergeants by newspaper men might jeopardize the future release of U.S. prisoners.

DISSENTERS GATHER AT GATE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pte. Ronald Lockman, a Negro soldier who refused to go to Vietnam, faced court martial today at the San Francisco Presidio.

Meanwhile some 40 persons demonstrated on his behalf outside the Presidio's gates.

The 23-year-old Philadelphian is charged with refusing to obey orders. He has contended that his fight is in the Philadelphia ghetto and not in Vietnam.

Spokesmen said continued disorders would occur as the military trial proceeds.

There was one brisk struggle during the demonstration Sunday. Military police clashed with a man who defied warnings not to cross a painted white line marking the boundary of the Presidio, headquarters of the United States 6th Army.

Resolution Censuring PM. Defeated at Alberta Meet

EDMONTON (CP) — A resolution censuring Prime Minister Pearson for "flagrant disregard" of the Alberta Liberal Association was defeated Saturday at a plenary session of the provincial Liberal convention.

The resolution arose out of Mr. Pearson's refusal to allow four cabinet ministers to attend the convention. News of the refusal threw the convention into turmoil, caused revisions in the program, and generally cast a pall of gloom over the proceedings.

The resolution was defeated on a show of hands. No count was made but the move appeared one-sided.

David McLean, president of the Alberta Young Liberals, said the convention was "not the best convention ever, but this is not just because of Mr. Pearson or just because of our showing in the last election."

He said the problem lay in diseases within the party which is "tired and without direction."

"We have fallen to debating personalities, not principles."

Another delegate said the convention must not "lay its disappointment at the feet of the prime minister."

"Our political opponents would like nothing better than for us to pass a motion censuring him."

NO EXPLANATION MADE

One supporter of the resolution said it should pass because cancellation of speaking engagements by cabinet ministers was not uncommon. He said the Red Deer constituency organization had been promised Agriculture Minister Greene as a speaker, but before the meeting a telegram had been received cancelling his engagement without explanation.

The absent ministers were External Affairs Minister Martin, Finance Minister Sharp, Transport Minister Hellyer and Registrar-General Turner.

MARCHERS ENJOYED TIME OF THEIR LIVES

VANCOUVER (CP)—The master of ceremonies at a downtown cabaret sent a costumed crowd of 450 on a "grand parade" into the streets Friday night minutes before smoke filled the ballroom.

Few in the crowd realized firemen had just entered the Commodore Cabaret and warned MC Charles H. Wills to get the crowd out fast, before fire in shops below spread to the ballroom.

They did not know Wills' grand march was actually a way to evacuate the building without causing panic.

William Alfred Gagnon, 40, a technician at a photo studio on the ground floor of the building, was later charged with arson.

"It's economical, and so comfortable."

"I think the room-by-room temperature control must be the reason. No heat is wasted. Our electric heating system gives even, draft-free heat, too. We're really happy with it." The people who have electric heating say it's economical.

Fair Warning

FINANCE MINISTER SHARP has followed up recent warnings by announcing that a tax increase will be imposed before the end of this month. Although his critics may protest the unusual manner of the announcement—pending tax changes are not normally promised in advance of the effective date, and without specifying the amount or type of the levy—there can be no question of the need for early federal action. To that the government is now firmly committed and the public has fair warning. Political criticism that Mr. Sharp's statement would have chaotic effects due to public uncertainty regarding what specific measures are in store have not been borne out in the stock market.

Under ideal circumstances it might have been better if Mr. Sharp had been able to present a fully-prepared budget at this time, but the inflationary forces have been moving so rapidly in recent weeks that a drastic step was obviously felt to be necessary.

The prediction of a temporary tax measure especially tailored to the current situation is accompanied by pledges of other government actions which will operate concurrently with the tax. Budgetary expenditures for the coming fiscal year, for instance, will be held to $10.3 billions, an increase of only 4½ per cent over this year and about half the year-to-year increase which has been experienced in recent times.

The government's reliance on the capital market next year will also be halved, from $1.5 billion to $750 millions. This should have a strongly beneficial effect on interest rates and hence on the economy. Mr. Sharp has also made it clear that medicare, to the extent that it is taken up by the provinces next year, will not be allowed to add to the national deficit but will be financed through taxes or reductions in other government spending programs.

After a long period of waiting the government has finally decided on a firm course of anti-inflationary action. That action should be accompanied by equally firm efforts of the government to cut its expenses. It asks the people to reduce their spending. It should therefore set an example which the public can follow.

In any view, increased taxes are not pleasant, but properly applied they should be effective in easing the demand for goods and so countering rising prices. The latter, unchecked, can be a much heavier drain on family budgets than a government levy.

Tail on the Dog

THE UNITED AUTO WORKERS' achievement of wage parity for Canadian workers of the Chrysler Corporation has far more implications than a few cents an hour on the pay cheque. It will have vital repercussions for the Canadian workers involved, and very likely for other Canadian industries in which the UAW agreement may be regarded as a precedent. And it marks a new phase of cross-border influence in Canadian affairs.

The true purpose of the enforced wage increase for workers in the Canadian plants of Chrysler was not, of course, due to concern for their standard of living. By ensuring that Canadian and American auto workers for this company will have the same pay rates, UAW President Reuther moved to curb a tendency of the American firm to send increasing amounts of parts work to the Canadian plants, where slightly lower wage costs were in effect. The result of wage parity, then, will presumably be a reduction in the amount of work available for the Canadian workers. They will be more highly paid but fewer of them may be employed, or there may be fewer hours of work a year.

The term parity, of course, means little, even with adjustment for the dollar exchange rate. The figures on the cheques may be similar, but it is what the money can buy that is important; and the logical outcome of the wage parity move would be to insist that Windsor auto workers pay the same rent costs as their Detroit counterparts, and comparable food costs, and so on, so that their real incomes would be truly equal.

Of more immediate concern is the likelihood that the Chrysler settlement may be paralleled by Ford and General Motors, and already there are indications that this will occur. Even applied to only one industry, this could have an inflationary effect on the Canadian economy—and it is not realistic to believe that union labor will not try to duplicate the settlement in other industries. They may not want parity with Detroit but they will want it with Windsor. The Canadian economy would thereby be tied into the United States economy even more closely, and we would retain even less control than now of inflationary trends and domestic currency problems.

By the Chrysler settlement Canadian labor has not won anything, it has had something imposed on it. With this action, Canada enters upon new, unknown and probably very dangerous ground. The problems of living next to a giant have been vastly increased and by the action of persons in a foreign country.

A Matter of Justice

DISCLOSURE THROUGH A Supreme Court of Canada decision that under our present law homosexuals can be imprisoned for life merely because of their nature reveals an unanticipated technicality of legislation which in justice should be amended. Britain recently altered its laws to remove homosexual behaviour between consenting adults from the list of criminal offences. The argument was that laws are for the protection of society and that what is done in private by common agreement and without harm to others is a matter only of personal action—no matter how abhorrent it may be to normal persons—which should not be punishable.

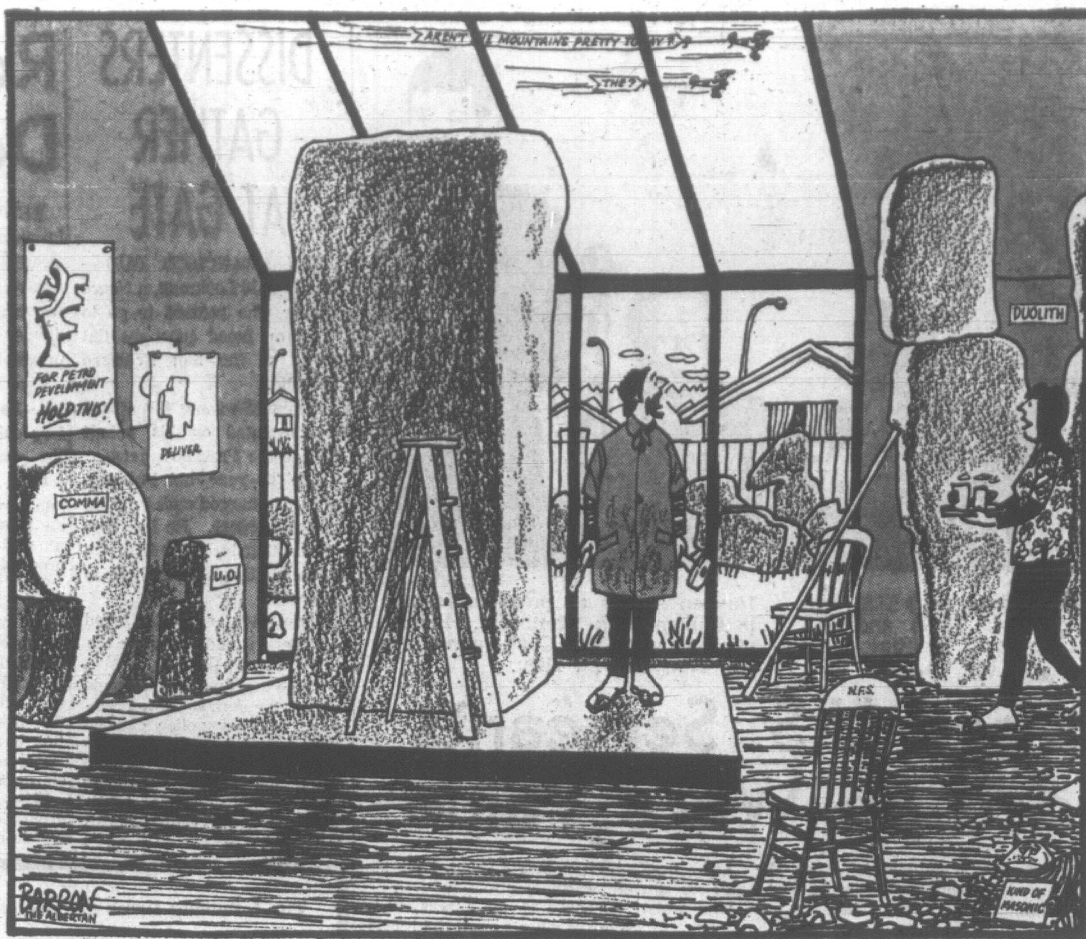

The case gains added strength,

What Young Canada Reads

IN RECENT DAYS THE ATTENTION of adults in this community has been focused on one word in one story in one book included in a senior secondary school English course. This week the community is invited to note all the stories in all the books available to all the young people in Canada. Starting Wednesday, the Greater Victoria Public Library is again sponsoring Young Canada Book Week, when adults have an opportunity to examine the wealth of excellent reading material available to children throughout the land.

Young Canada Book Week this year holds a double opportunity for Greater Victorians—a chance to see the literature created for the young, and a chance to visit the library to see at first hand what the taxpayer is getting for his money. It is an occasion which should not be missed by a community so manifestly interested at this time in a book read by some people young.

NO DOTING AFFECTION

A Marriage of Convenience Only

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

ANY Canadian who supposes that Britain's courtship of Europe is a love affair has not talked to the man on the British street.

What the Wilson government is proposing to the European Common Market is purely a marriage of convenience—but with highly honorable intentions. And any Canadian who supposes that this marriage, if it is ever arranged, will break Britain's ancient ties of blood, language and history with the United States does not understand high British or American policy.

The British people, as I am convinced after questioning a broad cross-section of them, have little affection for Europe. Why should they? Two major nations of the Common Market, Germany and Italy, were fighting Britain only about two decades ago. A third, France, was an ally who failed to fight and, for the time being, bases its Gaullist foreign policy not on practical facts but on a visceral hatred of all Anglo-Saxons.

The British, of course, are notoriously poor haters, the quickest of all peoples to forgive their enemies. But if they do not hate Europeans or anyone else for that matter they do not hate them, either. If it were possible, as it is not, they would prefer to live in a friendly way but well separated from their neighbors behind the wide moat of the English Channel.

Reasons For Approach

Why, then, is Britain so desperately seeking entry into Europe from which it retired in medieval times? First, because the economic imperatives discussed here Saturday rule out isolation. Second, because political currents now in flow give Britain a chance to use its old peculiar genius in a new and vital fashion, provided it is part of a coherent European force of some kind, probably not otherwise.

The political more than the economic calculation has reversed the British attitude and posture of some four centuries.

By one means or another Britain's economic problem can be solved, though its solution, on a selfish, unilateral basis, would have grave consequences for the world economy. The political problem, if Britain wishes to play a useful part in mankind's affairs, cannot be solved outside Europe.

Such, at least, is the belief of the Wilson government and the Conservative opposition which together have persuaded their people to follow them without enthusiasm, with the deepest doubts, with an instinctive distrust of Europeans but with a sensible, typically British acknowledgement of the facts.

Political Calculations

The real political calculation cannot be mentioned in public debates of Parliament since it would only inflame Gen. de Gaulle's almost psychotic Anglo-Saxon phobia. In private, however, every British politician discusses it quite candidly.

For the moment Europe enjoys a superficial, deceptive stability, protected (without visible gratitude) by the American nuclear umbrella, fattened by the trade of the Common Market and awed by the majestic personage in Paris. All this, in the opinion of the British and American governments, is a passing phase of history.

Once Gen. de Gaulle departs, they believe, his heirs cannot hope to maintain the existing, artificial state of French grandeur since it is built on the charisma of a single man whose magic will go with him. Then a vacuum of weakness will appear in France to threaten the uneasy power structure of the Continent and Germany will be in a position to dominate it.

To forestall that danger, with all its familiar and tragic memories, France and Europe as a whole will urgently require the counterweight, the political experience and the common sense of Britain which, so far, is the only major European nation where free democratic government has worked successfully.

The more enlightened politicians of Germany, struggling to make such a system work, thoroughly understand their need of Britain's presence, though for the present they fear to break with Gen. de Gaulle and treat him rather as a doddering old man in a temper.

These, in rough outline, are the real political calculations in London and Washington. If they succeed, after Gen. de Gaulle's disappearance, how will they affect Britain's relations with the Commonwealth and the United States? The actual prospects deserve more candid discussion than they are receiving in public debate.

Strains

It should be understood, in the first place, that if Britain enters Europe it will still be the official centre of the Commonwealth and, if things go well, the overseas Commonwealth nations should overcome their immediate losses in the British preferential market by increased sales in the enlarged and wealthy Common Market.

It should also be understood that something besides trade is involved in a fundamental shift of British policy. As a member of the European club Britain must abide by the club's rules and all its policies—economic, political and military—must conform to the general European consensus. To deny that those necessities will strain Britain's ties with the non-white majority of the Commonwealth when it feels a sense of abandonment is absurd and not very honest.

On the other hand, to say, as is often said, that Britain will strain or break its friendship with the United States is to deny facts far deeper than politics or economics, far more binding than treaties and far more enduring than governments.

U.S. Backing

The United States would not be quietly but ardently pressing Britain to enter Europe if it feared that the "special relationship" was in jeopardy. To be sure, the "special relationship" (a vague, almost meaningless slogan) will be changed in an economic, financial and technical sense but not in the intangible gut sense which is always decisive.

On the contrary, the United States wants Britain in Europe because it believes that Britain, once installed there, can act as the only effective transatlantic broker and bridge. In plainer terms, the United States has found that it cannot lead or manage Europe, even if it wanted to, but Britain, it thinks, can provide a leadership or, at any rate, a stability and coherence now obviously lacking. And that, of course, is precisely why Gen. de Gaulle does not want Britain in Europe to challenge France's temporary dominance.

Oversimplifying a vast and still incalculable complex of problems, Britain in Europe would change the "special" but not the real, historic, human relationship with the United States (and Canada also) and would strengthen it by the growth of its own power in a broadened context and a fertile soil.

For Democracy

An American statesman who knows Europe perhaps better than any of his colleagues told me that "in Europe, and only in Europe, Britain can become again a great power. No other nation can stabilize Europe and teach it how to operate democracy for everybody's benefit."

All this is for the future and may never happen. Meanwhile Britain must live and it is the waiting period and frustrating interregnum that mainly worries the British government. For it knows that if entry into Europe is delayed too long an angry and disgusted British public may well swing away from the Common Market altogether and seek an alternative.

Do any alternatives actually exist? Yes, there are two, one negative and unworthy of the British people, the other positive, courageous but, for the present anyway, beyond reach.

Britain, abandoning the Common Market, could try to make itself a kind of larger Sweden—neutral, totally regulated by the state, totally powerless in a world controlled by the American and Russian giants but possibly comfortable if not rich.

Out of the Question

That solution, which psychologists would call the return-to-the-womb syndrome has its supporters in British politics, even in the government and among a good many ordinary folk met in my recent travels. Yet as sheer defeatism and nostalgia it runs counter to the whole grain of British character and seems to me out of the question for practical as well as psychological reasons.

The second alternative is a so-called "Atlantic" free trade area embracing Britain, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Japan and any other nations that cared to join. This project was examined carefully for several years in Washington and dropped as unworkable. It looks still more unworkable today when the American Congress, far short of free trade, is tempted to revive old-fashioned protectionism, thereby demoralizing the world economy in global disaster.

Alternative

Nevertheless, a group of British economists, convinced that Britain will never get into Europe, has been working on a new and detailed blueprint for "Atlantic" free trade, and hopes that it will become practical politics.

So it may, but only if Europe is mad enough to reject the Britain which it urgently needs, and only if the United States is prepared to recast its whole commercial policy and expose all its industry to unrestricted foreign competition.

Certainly no new trading bloc will be created as a rival to the Common Market before every chance of Britain's entry into Europe has been exhausted and this may take some years at best. But Britain, now dangling in suspense and unable to plan its future until it knows Europe's answer, cannot wait forever. And, as we shall see, the present state of suspense, ambiguity and irritation threatens a sudden upheaval in British politics.

Mid-East Jam Now Yielding

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
From United Nations, N.Y.

AT very long last, the diplomatic ice jam on the Middle East has begun to crack and yield. The month of November, 1967, could go down as the time when a new and stabler order in the Holy Land began to unfold. It is, of course, far too early to speak of anything like an Arab-Israeli peace settlement. The most that can come out of current UN diplomacy is a appointment of a mediator who would seek a settlement along predefined lines. But this would be a very great deal.

The key man in all this is King Hussein of Jordan, and a key event was the Israeli shelling Oct. 24 of Egyptian oil refineries in the city of Suez.

The young Jordanian monarch is in a desperate plight. His kingdom has been decimated its principal source of foreign exchange—tourists—all but destroyed, its poverty and political instability magnified by an influx across the Jordan of 200,000 wretched refugees.

Faced with the gigantic challenge, he has made the decision without which no progress could ever have been achieved. He decided, and said publicly, that the time had come to accept Israel as a fact of life.

Frye

Great Courage

This was no easy thing to do. It required great personal and political courage. Hussein's grandfather, King Abdullah, was assassinated in 1951 for acting on a similar decision. Hussein's life may henceforth be in very real peril. Having crossed his personal Rubicon, the Jordanian king negotiated with United States UN delegate Arthur J. Goldberg, a UN resolution which would open the door to a free-wheeling, UN-assisted peace negotiation with the enemy.

This immediately altered all other calculations. Since Goldberg was also in close touch with Israel, it meant there was at very long last a bridge—tenuous, but real—between Arab and Jew on a limited but significant segment of their quarrel.

Extremist Arabs were outflanked. Their control over Arab strategy was threatened.

If the United Arab Republic went along with Jordan, the UN Security Council might easily follow—and Arab resistance to peace with Israel might collapse.

At this point, India (which competes with Pakistan for Soviet and Arab favor), Mali (which long has had a fellow-traveller reputation, and Nigeria (which has had Soviet help against rebellious Biafra) sought to slow the trend.

Counter-Proposal

They dropped into the hopper of the UN Security Council a rival resolution, one which would set in motion an Arab-Israeli negotiation but would define its goal as a stabilized armistice, not a peace treaty.

When two divergent proposals are offered in the UN, a third party invariably attempts to split the difference. In this instance, compromise between the Indian and American plans would mean a confused mandate for the mediator, somewhere between a "just and lasting peace" (Goldberg's draft) and "normalcy" (as the Indians put it).

This was a jolting setback, but it did not re-freeze the situation. In one sense, it even improved the prospects.

Arabs and the Soviet Union might have found it prohibitively embarrassing to accept publicly an American proposal; but they could conceivably agree to a different but similar proposal by a "third" party.

Meanwhile the psychological climate for achieving a compromise was better than it had been since 1949.

Israel's shelling of the Suez oil refineries, in reprisal for sinking of the Israeli destroyer Elath, had been a traumatic jolt for Egypt. It left President Nasser willing to tell Western contacts he would go along, under certain conditions, with the general lines of Goldberg's approach.

The Soviet Union also acknowledged it had been jolted by the Suez and Elath-sinking incidents, dramatizing as they did the continued inflammability of the Mideast.

Looking Back

From the Times, Nov. 13, 1967:
Initial steps are now being taken on behalf of the E and N Company to test the rights to the coal in the property recently acquired by John Arbuthnot and others.

The farm with its coal rights was acquired by Mr. Arbuthnot. But the latter, who has already begun mining the coal and is about ready to ship it is not to be left in undisputed possession.

The action after being heard in court will probably result in an appeal being carried out to the highest court in the realm.

Canadians State Why The Prime Minister Should Stay or Quit

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Conflict of opinion among the "grass roots" of the Canadian voting public as to whether or not the time has come for Mr. Pearson to make way for a new Liberal party leader centres on two main beliefs for either side of the debate.

The 47% of voters who would like him to resign feel this way first because of his age. Many say "This is a young man's country; Mr. Pearson can't stand the pace because of his age. Secondly they think the country needs new ideas in a fast-moving age, and that the public should have a chance to decide the country's political future, with two new leaders.

On the other hand, the 35% who want Mr. Pearson to carry on as long as possible believe in the first place that Mr. Pearson is functioning effectively as a leader, and secondly that there is no one to replace him, at the present time.

A factual summary of the public's reasoning shows this pattern:

SHOULD RESIGN (47%) BECAUSE—
He is too old; hasn't modern ideas; there are younger candidates around; men have to resign from business at 65-70; politicians should also resign.....	49%
He should make way for a new leader; we need new ideas; new blood; voters should have choice with two new leaders; it's not good for the party if he remains.....	21
He's not a good leader; compromises too much; miscast as a leader from the beginning; he's a statesman, not a politician; he's too indecisive; too stubborn.....	20
Other reasons.....	8
Can't say why.....	6
(Some gave more than one reason.)	104%

SHOULD CARRY ON (35%) BECAUSE—
He's a good PM; the country is functioning well; he's wise in foreign affairs; experienced; has good policies; he tries hard.....	57%
There's no one else to replace him; no better leader available.....	20
He'll have a better chance with less obstruction.....	5
Other reasons.....	20
Can't say why.....	6
(Some gave more than one reason.)	108%

Many men and women feel that Mr. Pearson should finish his term before resigning. Others think he will be able to achieve more in Parliament since there will be less obstruction with Mr. Diefenbaker out of power.

As one Westerner put it: "He'll do better with Stanfield, and play cosy for a couple of years." Said a Quebec man: "He has a lot to offer and will have a better chance with a new Opposition leader." Said another: "The world is going crazy and I want Mr. Pearson in charge of Canada."

Cambodia Leader Tries To Preserve His Nation

By STANLEY KARNOW

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia — With the possible exception of President Johnson, probably no chief of state is so sensitive to the press as Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

But while the President focuses mainly on his domestic popularity, Sihanouk's primary concern is the world's attitude toward his Southeast Asian nation.

Hardly a day passes in this capital without Sihanouk and his foreign advisers scanning piles of newspaper and magazine clippings that pour in from nearly every corner of the globe.

Besides running his country almost single-handedly, the prince somehow finds time to shoot off letters praising, criticizing or correcting articles from publications as diverse as the Ceylon Observer, Newsweek and the Dakar Daily African Unity.

Sihanouk even comments on letters to the editors of foreign newspapers, as he did recently in an answer to a reader of the Christian Science Monitor who had written to the paper expressing doubts about Cambodian neutrality.

At a recent press conference here, Sihanouk lectured reporters for almost half an hour, admonishing them especially for describing him as an "opportunist" and depicting Cambodia as a "pocket-sized" land.

The prince also announced that, after Nov. 20, he would revive his system of "white" and "black" lists to determine which journalists would be admitted to the country. Correspondents were indiscriminately allowed in both for Jacqueline Kennedy's recent visit and Cambodia's national day celebrations.

This preoccupation with the press, much of it exaggerated, curiously reflects Sihanouk's view of himself as well as his aspirations for Cambodia.

As a skillful leader who has succeeded in saving his country from the storms of Southeast Asia, the prince resents being treated as a kind of comic opera character. In particular, he reacts angrily to labels like "saxophone tooting Sihanouk" or worse, the derogatory nickname of "Snooky," often used in American newsmagazines. More profoundly, however, his sensitivity toward the press mirrors an ethnocentricity that stems from the fact that Cambodia, along with Israel and Poland, is one of the few nations that has been threatened with extinction.

Prince Sihanouk: Watches World Press

Over the centuries, the Cambodians were repeatedly decimated by their more powerful Thai and Vietnamese neighbors until their population, estimated at some 12 million in the 14th century, was reduced to less than a million 500 years later.

The French, who made Cambodia a protectorate in the mid-19th century, saved this nation from disappearing like the Chams, a Southeast Asian civilization that remains only a memory.

Against that background, Sihanouk's principal objective is Cambodia's survival. And, as he states quite candidly, he is worried less by the prospect of his country eventually becoming communist than by the danger that it might lose its national identity.

Four New Canadian Books Shed Light on Politics

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

The busiest of Canadian publishers, McClelland and Stewart, almost over-kill the political market with four recent books.

Two of them, one by the CBC's Washington man, James Minifie, and the other by a Jesuit priest, Neil McKenty, brought us much pleasure. Each will become one of the bedside group we gather for the long haul and recurrent spot reading.

One of the other two books, that by the Quebec Liberal Federation president, Eric Kierans, has much topical interest. For the moment, Mr. Kierans has heroic stature after putting down old friend Rene Levesque from the party establishment.

We found this book much more boring than Mr. Kierans' is in person. Perhaps it will be on library shelves in future years as a minute marker on the trail of those thematic obsessions of all our decades — what to do about the French and the Americans.

The fourth is in the pot-boiler category: The Collected Speeches Of ... politicians who believe they are important or who sense compilations.

Paul Martin Speaks for Canada is no better and no worse than most. For example, it's as dull though less diverse than a similar collection put out several years ago in honor of Lester B. Pearson.

The Prime Minister's distinction seems to be that his ghostwriters favor shorter sentences, probably at his urging.

Our international affairs man comes through as an earnest stuffed shirt — judicious, sensible; on the one hand here and on the other hand there. The first sentence of the book is a teaser. It goes: "The word independence has a powerful appeal to most people in the world, and to no people more than Canadians."

The last sentence is more typical of the contents. It winds up a short speech that is supposed to sketch our foreign policy.

Read it. Appreciate why Mr. Martin is so capably obscurantist that he's worth consideration as our next prime minister.

It goes: "Can we distinguish in practical terms between the different types of motivation for regional and other collective arrangements which have grown up in the past 20 years — immediate defence needs, long term advantages of pooling some resources and efforts, the trend toward supranational organization, the search for world collective security?"

Or to disembowel T. S. Elliot: This is the way the world goes on: This is the way the world goes on: This is the way the world goes on, not with bangs but long questions.

Challenge of Confidence: Kierans on Canada, has the feel of a pamphlet, rather than a book. Perhaps it seems incomplete and rather bald because Mr. Kierans lacks warmth.

Definitely, this is a statesman writing, not a partisan politician.

The style is a cross between a sermon to weak or non-believers (who need both admonishment and exhortation) and a lecture from an academic who knows best.

There's not an iota of crisis material assessing the personalities and forces on the stage in Quebec or at Ottawa. For example, there is nothing glittering from one of Mr. Kierans' richest veins, the behavior of the Anglos of Montreal.

One of the purposes of the book would seem to be a sympathetic rebuttal to both George Grant's polemic of a few years ago, Lament for a Nation, and Walter Gordon's two wistful works, Troubled Canada and Choice for Canada.

We cannot, like one national pundit, see the Kierans book as the new apocalypse. It's easier to imagine that Mr. Kierans may be the next messiah for the Liberals.

He is energetic, hard-working, pushy, and intelligent. However, it is his political career, from bearding Caouette to ousting Levesque, which suggests he may go on to greater affairs, not this book.

Neil McKenty's Mitch Hepburn is a treat from start to finish. Veterans in politics may say that an author couldn't miss with Mitch, a vivid precursor to the likes of John Diefenbaker and Charlie Van Horne. The late Liberal leader had Ontario vibrating in the brief years between Premiers Henry and Drew.

We'll come back to this book often because it is so interesting, for example, on Mackenzie King and Paul Martin and Liberal Party financing and on George Drew and Ontario Toryism.

Minifie's Who's Your Fat Friend? is subtitled Style in Politics. It shows a grievous structural weakness in the way it wanders along and peters out without rounding out its theme.

This is that "east and west are searching for a new style to meet the new problems of the age in which their lives must be spent."

Or, more specifically: "The basic problem is that the rational process of self-government cannot continue unless the governed are instructed in the facts and persuaded to accept in their light a logical and credible pattern for the future."

In his search for the style for our times, Mr. Minifie has much on the Kennedys, particularly Bobby, on LBJ and Ike and Harry Truman and FDR and Big Charlie and even Real Caouette and John Diefenbaker.

If you like political anecdote and pungent analysis recounted with felicity then get your order in for Who's Your Fat Friend?

Here's a sampler of Minifie's own style: "Johnson carried the South for the ticket in 1960. He was a man of his region. He phrased the time-honored verities in an accent which grew thicker as he made his southing: He would have fitted into any ticket since the Civil War."

"He was a simple country boy trying to do his job, and he needed your help. What was not so apparent was that he was a millionaire, wore contact lenses, demanded punctuality, and ran his staff ragged."

Children line up for their daily meal from CARE in one of the 753 feeding centres in the district of Bankura. The worst of the drought-caused famine is over in India now, for the time being. But tragically little thought is given to the future and vital water conservation projects are neglected through lack of co-operation between the various levels of government as well as between the people themselves.

Disunity Is a Strong Barrier To Self-Reliance for India

By BERNARD NOSSITER

BODHGAYA, India — In a village of mud huts south of this old Buddhist shrine is an earthen reservoir with a broken embankment.

The reservoir was dug last spring when the famine-ridden state of Bihar paid landless peasants to rebuild long neglected irrigation works. Now the reservoir is nearly dry and none of the villagers will repair it.

"We have no money," complains Ram Narayan, the muscular village headman. "We sold all our ornaments and we are all in debt to the money-lenders."

But why, a visiting reporter asks, don't you fix the reservoir with your own tools and your own effort?

Uneasy

Ram Narayan looks uneasy at the other villagers clustered around the stranger and says:

"We are too divided here. We do not have unity."

Again and again, a reporter touring the state of Bihar hears the same story. The villagers of this drought-stricken region have been saved from an enormous calamity by a massive relief effort. They know that irrigation can save them from the uncertain fall of rains. But without outside help, they will not work together on common projects to draw up the abundant underground water or save the rain that falls from the skies.

Good Crop

Now the emergency is over. In most parts of the state, a good crop of rice and other grains will be harvested. But now, too, outside assistance is dwindling and there is every prospect that Bihar will slip back into its normal condition of semi-starvation. To be sure, perhaps one-third of the state's 33 million persons, the landless or nearly landless, Untouchables and tribesmen, are too close to the edge of existence to do anything for themselves.

At a nearby cluster of hovels belonging to Untouchables, a plot of paddy, the rice plant, was drying up although an unworked well stood next to it.

The villagers, painfully thin men with liquid eyes filled with misery, explained this paradox. The owner of the plot was off seeking work elsewhere. He needed money for food that day and could not wait to irrigate his tiny parcel.

But even in the villages of the better off, where peasants own eight to 24 acres, there is an almost uniform refusal to pool efforts in some collective irrigation work.

No Inspiration

At Bodhgaya, Buddha supposedly found enlightenment under the pipal tree and a handsome, soaring stone temple was erected here more than a thousand years ago. But the modern Biharis take no inspiration from this common work and even last year's great drought has not shaken them.

Some Indians concerned over this perennial famine region argue that there will be no solution until the landless are given land of their own. Not until then, it is contended, will peasants have enough interest to do the work that exploits the state's water potential. But this appealing argument is weakened by those who have land and still won't work together.

Four Crops

With new wells dug during the emergency, some Bagodar farmers hope to get four crops a year instead of two. They want to dig more and will let the government lend them half the cost. Beyond that they will not go.

Even this, however, appears too much for the strained resources of this disturbing state.

Every three or four years here, the rains do not come in enough abundance for Bihar's primitive farming. But the great energies mobilized to save this state from catastrophe this year now appear to be spent.

Left to itself, Bihar is likely to confront a similar disaster in the not too distant future. (The Washington Post)

Put top level talks behind closed doors for $1.25

To a teenager every phone conversation is of vital importance — but these top level talks can often conflict with Dad's rights to a little peace and relaxation. So why not put such talks where they belong, behind closed doors? For as little as $1.25* per month you can add an extension phone in your teenager's bedroom and live in peace ever afterwards! To get one, just call your local B.C. TEL Business Office — or visit the special display there and see the various models for yourself. If moving into a new home, ask the telephone man to put in one or more extensions with your master phone (this saves an extra installation charge later).

Car Hits Tree; Woman Killed

PORT ALBERNI—A grandmother died when a car crashed into a tree shortly before noon, Friday.

An infant girl, the only other occupant of the car, was unhurt.

Police arrived at the scene 10 miles west of Parksville, in Cathedral Grove, to find Mrs. Marie LaClair, 43, of 815 14th Avenue North, Port Alberni, dead in her car.

She had failed to negotiate a curve. Her car left the road and crashed into a tree.

That portion of the Parksville-Port Alberni Highway is lined with giant trees, which keep much of the winding road in deep shadow. It has been the scene of many accidents.

Mrs. LaClair is survived by her husband, Henry.

Funeral arrangements are still to be made.

A coroner's inquest is expected to be convened shortly.

Hospital Chairman Will Challenge Reeve

NORTH COWICHAN — Claude Green Sunday fired the first shots in his campaign to unseat Reeve Donald Morton in North Cowichan.

He alleged "disharmony and distrust in the municipality" which was borne out by the successive defeats of bylaws.

"You may agree or disagree with petitions but they should not be disregarded as was the case in North Cowichan."

"People who signed should be heard."

Mr. Green said he referred to a zoning fight between council and Maple Bay ratepayers

Teen Town Adviser Back in Race

DUNCAN—Now you see one, now you don't.

This is the way it's been up to now with candidates to oppose Ald. Hamish Mutter in the mayoralty race here in December.

The political haze cleared a little at the weekend and Jim Quaife said he definitely is going to be a starter. He is adult adviser to Teen Town.

Ald. James Saunders, who first of all said he was considering running, has withdrawn.

Present Cowichan school board chairman Dr. Neil Dornig tentatively threw his hat in the ring but last week withdrew from possible nomination.

Sunday Jim Quaife issued this statement: "It has been my belief for some time that certain changes are required in our present administration."

"There exists in this area an apathy which is almost second of none."

"If we are to be a progressive community we must have change."

"We must develop a willingness to co-operate with our neighbors."

"We must undertake a program which will be of benefit to all but especially we must care for the needs of the young and elderly."

Mr. Quaife, who had backed off the mayoralty race in favor of Dr. Dornig, said: "I must now reiterate my previous declared intention to stand as mayor in the forthcoming election."

"I do not believe this office should go unchallenged year after year as in the past."

The mayoralty in Duncan becomes vacant with the retirement of Jack Dobson after 12 years.

KANAKAN COLLECTS STORIES OF HIS PEOPLE

'I Didn't Eat Your Grandfather, I Wasn't There'

By ED GOULD

If prizes were awarded for intestinal fortitude in the face of pain and misfortune, Paul Roland would top a blue ribbon.

Paul, a descendant of the early Hawaiians, or Kanakans as they were called, has been paralyzed below the waist since he was 14. His condition was further aggravated when he was later shot in a rifle-cleaning accident and now has developed glaucoma—a serious eye disorder—in both eyes.

Despite his hard luck, Paul has maintained a cheerful disposition that is as seldom evident in those of us who have all our physical endowments in good working order.

As well as having time to reflect on life's vicissitudes,

Paul has collected material, photos and news clippings on the glorious past his Kanakan forefathers played in the establishment of the Gulf and San Juan Islands.

"My grandfather was a tall, proud man," Paul said. "He worked on the Hudson Bay Company ships as an interpreter and took part in surveying and servicing these islands. He even got involved in the Pig War."

The incident referred to involved the shooting by the British of an American pig—the only casualty—in a San Juan boundary dispute. The U.S. was awarded the islands in 1872.

"There were Kanakans on the San Juans and on the Gulf Islands and they were all related," Paul said. "After the war was over the San Juan Kanakans had the choice of staying in the States or becoming Canadians."

"Most of them chose Canada because of our monarchical system. The old Hawaiians always had a monarch and they felt they could trust them better than a president."

Paul has lived with his brother Jack and his wife and family for the past 20 years in their home on Isabella Point, near Fulford Harbor.

"Sometimes I wonder what I would have done without him," Mrs. Roland said. "Jack was always away so much fishing and Paul was like a second father to the children."

"He was always there with advice and encouragement. They worship him."

"Say," Paul said, "I got a funny story for you. It's true though. There used to be an old Kanakan living on Isabella Point when a new school teacher named Cook moved in.

The old Kanakan thought sure that Cook was the grandson of Captain Cook and he was scared stiff of him. You remember what the Hawaiians did to Captain Cook?

"They figured his men were misusing the Hawaiian women so the third time he came back they killed him and ate him. Not because they were cannibals but because he was a very wise and brave man and they hoped by eating part of him they'd get some of that strength and wisdom."

"Anyway, this Mr. Cook and the little Kanakan came face to face one day and the little guy threw himself down on the floor in front of him and said:

"Please, Captain Cook. Don't blame me, I didn't eat your grandfather. I wasn't even there!"

Paul has a wealth of such stories and a bulging album of clippings and tintype photos of early Kanakan history.

Now 54, and with his eyes failing him, he hopes somehow to acquire a tape recorder so he can continue to record these stories for posterity.

STORE FINED FOR SALES ON SUNDAY

NANAIMO — Vic's Food Liner, Ltd., of nearby Wellington, was fined $250 Friday for its third conviction under the Lord's Day Act.

Police said the shop, open on Sunday, July 16, sold such items as plastic cups and radio batteries.

Magistrate Eric Winch said that though the 1904 law was not keeping pace with society and other businesses were also conducting similar operations, it was not his place to make legislative decisions and the company had to be found guilty.

Prescription Policy Irks Cowichans

DUNCAN — Cowichan Indians are "extremely frustrated" regarding policy on the procurement and distribution of drugs.

At the beginning of this year Indians on local reserves obtained necessary drugs through the public health nurses.

Subsequently, in May, zone director Dr. C. S. Gamble said this seriously interfered with the nurses' other duties.

He said at that time: "Drugs will be available at local drug stores and it will be left to the discretion of the druggist to determine whether the customer is in a position to pay."

Cowichan Band council says: "Now the setup has been changed again and anyone wishing to have the Indian Affairs branch pay for their drugs must obtain written approval for each prescription."

"We are urging the department to set up an identification card system so indigents, pensioners and seasonally employed people don't have to be continually going to the Cowichan Agency for written statements for each prescription."

Strong Winds Made Weekend Exciting for Island Sailors

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Strong winds gusting to 25 mph in Oak Bay provided exciting racing on Sunday for the second Turkey Head series races.

Two dozen boats sailed a five mile course which started off Willows Beach and went to Darimont, Jenny Jones, Fiddle Reef and Mary Todd Island, finishing off the Beach.

Many of the boats started over-cannvassed, with resulting broken fittings, torn sails, and knockdowns. Because the committee boat left its station to assist a capsized boat, the morning race was discounted.

The two afternoon races saw Dick James pilot Lalanga II first across the finish line.

Results on corrected time were:

FIRST AFTERNOON RACE
1. Rod McBride, Lemolo; 2. Dick James, Lalanga II; 3. Dick Readshaw, Naasille; 4. Jean Pierre LeBlond, La Marquis; 5. Charlie Pash, Chamoxy; 6. Victor Lironi, Helly Dolly; 7. Frostbite dinghies in Cadboro Bay Saturday and on Esquimalt Harbour Sunday raced in steady winds of 12 m.p.h.

November series winners at Royal Victoria were Sid Halls in Davidsons and Norman Marcus in El Toros, each with three firsts.

Ron Mack placed second and Jim Davis third in the 10-foot Davidson fleet. Shirley Jefferson took second and Peter Brinacombe third in the 14-foot El Toro fleet.

Doug Beer scored two firsts in Fireballs.

At RCNSA, Jill Spear led the El Toro with two firsts and two seconds in the five-race series. She was followed by Bill Whitby with two firsts and one second; Bis Whitby with one first and one second, and Roger Hay with one second. Nine boats competed.

Canadian Mill Union Expanding

NANAIMO — Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada Friday applied to the Labor Relations Board for certification as bargaining agent for personnel at Hooker Chemical Plant, adjacent to the Harma pulp mill here.

The plant, which manufactures chlorine and caustic materials for the pulp mill, employs 15 men. The men are now represented by the Operating Engineers International Union, Local 82, of Vancouver. President Gordon Wickham, of the PPWC local, said the Hooker employees had signed up 100 per cent with the Canadian union.

He said the PPWC now holds certification in two chemical plants in Vancouver and is also applying for certification of a chemical plant at Squamish.

Forestry Outlook Getting Brighter

The provincial bureau of economics has predicted a moderate increase in the value of British Columbia forestry production this year.

The prediction is based on a continued upward trend in North American housing starts, rising lumber prices and firm export markets.

It said there were modest advances in gross sales during the first half of 1967, accompanied by a slight decline in net profits and a higher cost of doing business.

The estimated net value of forest-based industries in B.C. in 1966 is $1,020,000,000. The bureau report said the lumber market has shown a strong recovery from the fall of 1966's depressed condition. Prices firmed up early this year, rose markedly during the third quarter and now have levelled off.

"North American housing starts are still running behind last year's levels to date but have reversed the 1966 trend and are rising month by month," the report said.

"All that is holding back a major housing boom is the now-chronic shortage of mortgage funds."

CANADIAN CAR MEN SAY:

'We Want Parity Now'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Workers at Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. have given their union negotiators a mandate to call a strike if contract talks, under way for 3 1/2 months, fail to achieve settlement.

The existing agreement expires Dec. 1 but the United Auto Workers did not set any strike deadline.

Affected are 11,000 workers in Ford's Ontario plants at Oakville, Windsor, Bramalea and Niagara Falls.

In secret ballots cast Sunday, the workers from the four centres voted overwhelmingly to give the UAW a free-hand in calling for strike action.

Key issue is the fight for wage parity with U.S. auto workers. Last week's settlement at Chrysler Corp. in Detroit produced an agreement to give employees of Chrysler Canada Ltd. wage parity by June, 1970.

But no firm agreement was reached on wage parity in the Ford U.S. settlement.

"We want parity now, not in 1970," Ed Bruce, president of Hamilton Local 707, told 2,000 voting workers Sunday night in the Hamilton Forum. His local bargains for 5,400 workers at the Ford Oakville plant.

Bruce also heads the union's Canadian negotiating team.

Eddy Match Company Has Many Interests

TORONTO (CP)—The Eddy Match Co. Ltd., in business in Canada since 1851, no longer confines itself to making matches. In fact, matches are the smallest part of Eddy's corporate business.

Diversification has put it into the office furniture, vending machine, building supply and plywood industries. Together with match production, these helped the company net $1,150,000 in profits last year on assets of $24,600,000.

"About 10 years ago we began to realize the match business wasn't really going anywhere," says J. A. Lawason, an Eddy vice-president. "The changing way of life as people from the country moved to cities, the increasing use of electricity and gas for heating, and the increase in imported matches all made us realize the business had a steady but limited future."

So Eddy bought Steel Equipment Ltd., an office furniture manufacturer in Pembroke, Ont.

The office furniture business now is one of the fastest growing divisions of the company, officials say. Its latest development is a system of lateral filing, which it now is selling to large industrial customers along with office desks and chairs, cabinets and library shelving.

Eddy is also Canada's largest producer of vending machines, which it manufactures and distributes from a plant at Deseronto, Ont., near Belleville.

It makes industrial tools and dies at Eddy Industrial Products at Pembroke, owns plywood and lumber mills in B.C., and three years ago bought Grant Industries, a country-wide distributor of building materials.

Its officers call Eddy a conglomerate—a company whose several divisions are interwoven financially but independent of each other in their operations.

Eddy still turns out billions of matches annually at Pembroke. Basic production methods haven't changed much.

Winters Optimistic On Canada Wheat Sale

REGINA (CP) — Things are looking up for Canadian wheat sales, Trade Minister Winters said today.

Although Canada still must "scratch for every sale we get," more orderly conditions have returned to the world market and prices have stabilized, he said.

"I am confident that our shipments will pick up as the crop year unfolds and as importers use up their own crops," Mr. Winters told the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool.

"In these circumstances, purveyors of gloom do not serve the interests of western grain producers."

"Let us create no impression that distress selling conditions prevail, because they do not; or that we are discouraged about selling our wheat, oats and barley, because we are not."

VISIT CANTON

Both Russian and China were living up to their obligations under three-year contracts. A Canadian wheat board team left for Canton last Friday to open negotiations on purchases and shipments for the current crop year.

Sales to Japan have been off 50 per cent, but picked up in December.

"This gives us reason to believe — certainly to hope — that our total export to Japan will be sizable, and that they will include substantial amounts of No. 1 Northern."

Other officials have recently visited Brazil, Lebanon, Morocco, the Philippines, Venezuela and Taiwan. Some of the world's most important wheat buyers were received during the summer at Expo 67 and in Western Canada.

REDUCES PRICE

Mr. Winters said wheat buyers have played a waiting game this year because wheat crops have been good. The wheat board had no choice but to reduce its asking prices in order to hold markets.

The trade minister said the government has agreed to pay farmers the difference between the market price and prices to be established under the new International Grains Arrangement because of "what it considered to be an undertaking to the western farmers."

He remained confident that all exporters would sign the IGA agreements by Nov. 30 and put them into force next July 1. The U.S. has agreed that prices should be strengthened.

"We are hopeful, therefore, that wheat prices will improve as the marketing season progresses."

Prestige Rating For Football Would Be Help

Victoria, 10; Sacramento, 7

By DOUG PEDEN

Victoria Tyees have finished the home portion of their Continental Football League season on a winning note and now city fans must wait to see if they will be back next year in what appears almost certain to be an expanded western division.

Tyees, who have two road games remaining on their schedule, ensured themselves of no worse than a fifth-place finish Saturday night. They battled from behind on a sloppy Royal Athletic Park field to clip Sacramento Buccaneers 10-7 and move two games ahead of the sixth-place Bucs.

Owner-coach Don McKeta, who is trying to set the Tyees up as a community-owned club, is determined to keep Victoria as a member of the CFL's western division and many of his hopes may be riding on impressions gained here Saturday.

Among fewer than 1,000 spectators at Athletic Park were Hjalmeo "Jelly" Anderson, scouting players for Los Angeles Rams, and Jim Garrett, in town to evaluate Victoria as a potential site of a farm club of one of the National Football League teams and also to scout players for five NFL squads.

"This is going to be a very good league," commented Anderson, perhaps indicating that the NFL was planning to subsidize Continental clubs next season.

Subsidization by a big-league club is one of McKeta's hopes for 1968 and his financial burden could be eased if any NFL clubs pick up Tyee players for tryouts.

Although Garrett declined to suggest what he would be including in his official report to the NFL, he indicated that Victoria might be considered as a farm club location.

"You have an attractive city here," he said, "it's large enough, you have two excellent facilities (Athletic Park and Centennial Stadium), and you have a tremendous asset in Don McKeta. He's a very capable and dedicated man."

"I feel the enthusiasm is here and with the NFL image properly presented I believe you could eventually have 5,000 fans or more at each game."

Fumble Set Stage for Winning Score

"However, success will very probably depend on making attendance at football games a matter of prestige, as it is in places like New York and Washington."

"There is a problem at present with the team working out in Seattle," Garrett added, while stressing that these were merely personal opinions. "Although this is not a major issue at this time, I believe it would be better if players were residing in Victoria."

On the field, Anderson and Garrett may have had trouble making accurate assessment of players because of soggy field conditions. However, they should have liked among the Tyees the running of halfback

Steve Jones, the defensive efforts of tackle Glen Gardner and halfback Jim Whitmore, and the scrambling effectiveness of quarterback Terry Durham.

It was an uphill battle for the Tyees after Allen Oik grabbed a 14-yard pass from Derik Shelton for a converted touchdown in the second quarter to give Sacramento a 7-0 lead.

Cliff Smith reduced the deficit to 7-3 on a 16-yard field goal in the third quarter and the Tyees got the break they needed in the final period.

After their hopes appeared to have been squashed when Jim Newsom intercepted a Durham pass on his goal line and ran it back to the Sacramento seven, Tyees got a big break when fullback Guy Whitaker fumbled the slippery ball and Kurt Genger recovered for Victoria.

Three plays later, Durham went over from the one for the winning touchdown, converted by Smith.

Buccaneers, recovering a fumble by Jones on their own 30-yard stripe, almost snatched the decision, as Shelton fired his southpaw passes for long gains to Jerry Mosher and Oik, the last one to the Victoria three-yard stripe with about one minute left.

Failing to connect on four passes and set back by a 15-yard penalty, Buccaneers went down to defeat when Whitaker was wide on a 26-yard field goal attempt.

Rangers scored first with a 24-yard field goal by George Fleming in the second quarter. Two touchdowns were scored by Seattle in the final quarter on plunges by Kermit Jorgenson and Les Mueller.

Rangers Defeat Bombers

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Rangers, showing one of their best defensive efforts of the season, defeated San Jose 17-7 in a Continental Football League game here Sunday.

Rangers allowed the Apaches to enter Seattle territory only once, but that resulted in a fourth-quarter touchdown on a three-yard plunge by quarterback Charlie Green.

Rangers scored first with a 24-yard field goal by George Fleming in the second quarter. Two touchdowns were scored by Seattle in the final quarter on plunges by Kermit Jorgenson and Les Mueller.

CATS PLAY TONIGHT

Boyer Snips Fuse On Puck Rockets

Fred Boyer proved a most capable substitute and, unfortunately for Victoria Cougars, Kamloops Rockets could be "all fired up" tonight.

Rockets face the Cougars in Memorial Arena tonight (at 8:15) and the winners' reward will be third place in the B.C. Junior Hockey League.

Kamloops seemed ready to claim the spot Sunday. Rockets hustled to a 3-1 lead with less than 19 minutes of play remaining in a game at New Westminster. But the hometown Royals, with Boyer playing a prominent role, pulled it out of the fire, 5-4, to solidify their hold on second place.

Last-place Kelowna turned on Westminster 9-3 on Saturday while front-running Penitents Broncos dropped Kamloops 11-5 in a Friday night game.

Boyer came on the scene Sunday. Royals' coach Bob Penton called in the substitute goaltender after regular Lionel Trudell had given up 24 goals in the last three games.

FIGHTS MAR GAME

The move paid off. Boyer, stopping 32 shots, played a strong game. He made several key saves in the third period to ignite Royals' comeback. In contrast, rival goalie Wally Deneault stopped 25 shots.

Dennis Houser sparked Royals with a three-goal effort. Kelowna exploded for six straight goals in the second period to trip Royals in a game marred by 12 penalties, including two fights. New Westminster defenceman Ron Collingwood figured in both.

Collingwood tangled with Bob Muir as teams headed for the dressing room after the second period. He also became embroiled in a third-period stick-swinging battle touched off by

Brian Kakoski of Royals and Kelowna's Pat McMahon.

COLD AIR... AND THAT'S ALL

Unhappy man of the moment is Saskatchewan flanker Hugh Campbell, who clutches nothing but cold air as he attempts to grab pass from Ron Lancaster while being covered by Edgar Poles, of Edmonton Eskimos, during Western Football Conference semi-final Sunday at Regina. Hugh's miss on snow-dusted field didn't matter because Roughriders rambled to 21-5 victory over Esks to gain berth in final against Calgary.

When We Have Injury We Play a Little Better

By The Associated Press

Green Bay rookie Travis Williams couldn't believe it. Cleveland coach Blanton Collier didn't want to. And, as usual, Packer coach Vince Lombardi had the last word.

"That's been our history. The Packers always rise to the occasion," said Lombardi after the Packers, led by Williams' record-tying heroics, stunned the Browns 55-7. "When we've had an injury, we always play a little better."

The Packers had the injuries — starting running backs Jim Grabowski and Elijah Pitts are out — and they certainly played well, running up a 35-7 first period margin and romping in from there.

The victory, spiced by Williams' record-matching two kickoff returns for touchdowns, kept the defending champion Packers atop the National Football League's Central Division.

COLTS STILL UNBEATEN

Baltimore remained unbeaten and on top of the Coastal Division with a 49-7 romp over Atlanta Falcons' with Johnny Unitas providing a spectacular passing game and the Colts showing no let-down after the previous week's important victory over Green Bay.

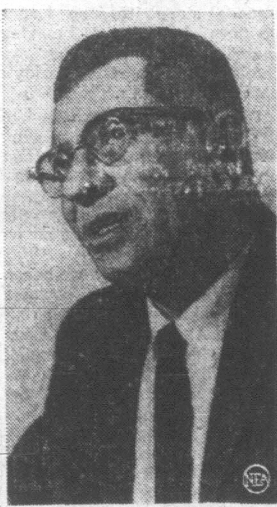

Dallas Cowboys moved three games in front in the Capitol Division standings after a 27-10 decision over New Orleans Saints, while St. Louis Cardinals maintained a precarious hold on the Century Division lead following a 14-14 tie with Pittsburgh Steelers.

Chicago Bears humbled New York Giants 34-7, Minnesota Vikings and Detroit Lions battled to a 10-10 tie, Los Angeles Rams whipped Philadelphia Eagles 33-17 and Washington Redskins clipped San Francisco 49ers 32-28 in the other NFL games.

"I couldn't believe it was happening," Williams said after returning kickoffs for touchdowns on runs of 97 and 85 yards for the Packers. His feat matched the league record of two kickoff returns for touchdowns set last year by Philadelphia's Timmy Brown.

And the 35 points run up by the Packers in the first period set a league record. Donny Anderson and Ben Wilson filled in admirably for the ailing Pitts and Grabowski, Anderson scoring four touchdowns and Wilson rushing for 100 yards.

"The story of the game,"

Hull's Rivals Wait

By The Canadian Press

Bobby Hull says he does not have the stamina to score at a goal-a-game average during the full National Hockey League season. But 11 rival teams are waiting for him to show some sign of fatigue.

The Chicago star and his curved stick accounted for three goals during the weekend as the Black Hawks tied Montreal Canadiens 3-3 Saturday and defeated St. Louis Blues 5-2 Sunday.

The 28-year-old left winger also picked up an assist Sunday. He has scored 14 goals in Chicago's 14 games this season and assisted on seven for 21 points to lead the NHL scoring derby.

Veteran Gordie Howe of Detroit, who held a one-point lead over Hull going into the weekend's action, did not pick up any points Sunday in a 3-1 victory over Montreal.

New York Rangers defeated Oakland Seals 5-3 and Philadelphia Flyers downed Boston Bruins 4-2 in other Sunday action.

Minnesota North Stars defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 Saturday, while Boston edged Oakland 2-1 and St. Louis walloped Pittsburgh Penguins 5-1.

THREE 50-GOAL YEARS

Hull, who scored 50 goals in 1961-62, 54 in 1965-66 and 52 last season, has said only one or two players are strong enough physically to average a goal a game over the season.

Hull averaged more than a goal a game early in 1965-66, but tapered off during the final half of the 70-game schedule.

Hull scored twice Sunday. Ken Wharram, with the 200th of his career, Doug Mohns and the other Hull, Dennis, got one each.

Ron Schock and Ron Stewart were the St. Louis marksmen. Mohns and Hull got the Hawks off to a fast start, beating former team-mate Glenn Hall in the first eight minutes.

Dennis Hull's goal was his first of the season. He had 25 last year.

EXTEND STREAK

Philadelphia is undefeated in its last four games.

Norm Ullman scored his 300th goal of his career, while Floyd Smith and Gary Bergman added the others in Detroit's game.

Rookie Roy Edwards, who took over in the Red Wings net when Roger Crozier retired last week, was a standout with 36 saves—30 in the first 40 minutes.

Reg Fleming scored twice as the Rangers dumped Oakland. Jean Ratelle, Bob Nevin and Harry Howell added the others.

It was Oakland's 14th successive game without a victory.

Hull started the Hawks on a comeback in Montreal Saturday after the Canadiens took a 3-0 first period lead. Team-mate Stan Mikita, defending scoring champion, and Mohns scored the others. Rookie Jacques Lemaire scored twice for Montreal and Dick Duff once.

The Leafs were outshot 36-14 by the fledgling North Stars of the Western Division.

STANLEY LOST

Andre Boudrias and Bob Woynich scored the Minnesota goals. Ron Ellis replied for Toronto who lost defenceman Allan Stanley for at least five days. He was taken to hospital after being hit by a flying puck and it took 25 stitches to close a cut over his left eye.

Doctors said there was no permanent injury.

Two veterans—goalkeeper Johnny Bower and captain George Armstrong—also slept late and missed the Leafs' plane back to Toronto. The Leafs play at home Wednesday against Boston.

DAMASCUS NIPPED IN INTERNATIONAL ...

Manuel Had Faith in Fort Marcy

LAUREL, Md. (CP-AP) — Jockey Manuel Ycaza apparently saw something in Fort Marcy that even escaped trainer Elliott Burch.

While Burch downgraded Fort Marcy's chances against Damascus in the $150,000 Washington International, Ycaza retained confidence in the three-year-old gelding.

When the 1 1/4-mile turf race was over at Laurel race course Saturday, Fort Marcy had scored the biggest victory of his flip-flop career and earned $90,000 for owner Paul Mellon's Rokeby Stable.

Ycaza, the Panamanian who reigns as the world's most suspended jockey, wound up as the only three-time winner of the International. What's more, he's never lost—having previously won in 1959 and 1960 aboard Bald Eagle.

Damascus, winner of 12 of 15 previous starts in 1967 en route to certain Horse of the Year honors, failed by a nose in his first grass race but only after a stirring stretch duel which outdistanced seven foreign horses.

Tobin Bronze, the Australian representative who now will race in California under the silks of new American owners, finished 2 1/2 lengths behind in third place. Canada's He's A Smoothie, the early leader of a slow pace, wound up fourth.

Fort Marcy paid $18.40, $4.60 and $3.40. Damascus returned $2.80 and $2.40 and Tobin Bronze paid $3 to show.

A crowd of 33,112 wagered a record $494,575 on the race, and a total of $142,086 in bets went down the drain on Damascus, the odds-on favorite. He's A Smoothie closed at odds of about 27 to 1.

He's A Smoothie, owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto, earned $10,000 and ran his season's winnings to $100,000.

Smoothie broke badly from the No. 8 post position, but took the lead and held it at the mile.

Smoothie finished five lengths back of the winner. He ran the half mile in a slow 49 seconds and the mile in 1:38 3/5.

The rest of the field, in order, included Speed Symbol of Japan, Casque Grise of France, Ribocco of England, Venetella's Chateaubriand and another English entry, In Command.

... TORONTO HORSE FOURTH

"Manuel begged me into letting him ride the horse when I really didn't think we had a shot at beating Damascus," Burch said. "I thought Damascus was unbeatable."

A flop as a two-year-old, Fort Marcy was bought at auction by Mellon's agent for $77,000. Since then, the gelding has included five major stakes among his seven grass victories and totalled $236,264 in earnings this year.

Both jockey Willie Shoemaker and trainer Frank Whiteley Jr. declined to blame the Damascus defeat on the grass underfoot, saying it made no difference. But Eddie Arcaro, the retired riding great, disagreed. "At any rate, Damascus wound up with $25,000 for second place, boosting his one-year record earnings to $817,941."

City Bowler Captures Coveted Tenpin Crown

Gary Barker collected the coveted scratch all-events crown Sunday at Mayfair Lanes as firing ended in the two-weekend provincial tenpin bowling championships.

GARY BARKER
... all-events king

Barker blasted the pins for a nine-game total of 1,758 as he competed in team, doubles and singles events, finishing with a 15-pin margin over another Victorian—Derek Leonard.

Barker, who will have his entry fee to the American Bowling Congress masters' tournament paid by the sponsoring B.C. Tenpin Association if he decides to enter next year's event at Cincinnati, also took second place in the handicap all-events. The winner was his doubles partner, Frank Evans, who topped Gary by eight pins with a tally of 1,955.

NANAIMO DUO WINS

Evans and Barker were 23 pins off the pace set by the winning Nanaimo doubles combination of A. Wilkinson (652) and D. Irvine (536), who added a 141 handicap to a scratch score of 1,188 for a total of 1,329.

The Vancouver duo of Tom Locke and Denny Woo (1,304) was third and the Ladysmith pair of J. Penarsky and C. Quarnitnas (1,297) was fourth.

Powell River trundler B. Tyler topped the handicap singles event with 603-129-732 with two city bowlers, Bob Norton (692) and Robert Randall (680) next in line.

Rawlings' Letdowns Damaging

VANCOUVER—Victoria Rawlings need a guard on the panic button.

That seemed to be most urgent need after Rawlings dropped a pair of heart-tugging Inter-City Women's Basketball League decisions to University of British Columbia Thunderettes. It almost appeared as if someone pushed the panic button.

Victoria led 42-34 with three minutes remaining in regulation time Saturday, wound up 51-49 losers, in overtime.

On Sunday, the story was almost the same. Ahead 33-24 with five minutes to play, Rawlings couldn't score a point the rest of the way and wound up 39-38 losers!

PRESS DID IT

In both games, UBC's switch to a zone press did most to unnerve the Victoria team.

UBC's double victory pushed Thunderettes into undisputed possession of first place with six points. Mount Pleasant Legion and Victoria follow with four points each while Vancouver Moils still are winless after three starts.

Despite winning, UBC couldn't contain Mary Coutts. The Victoria ace was outstanding with 20 points Saturday and 16 on Sunday. That gives Mrs. Coutts a total of 74 points in Victoria's four games, and a clear-cut lead in the individual scoring races.

SATURDAY
UBC (51)—Wilkinson, Judy Douglas 8, Bell 6, Janet Douglas 24, Barr, Stewart 2, Ross 5, Zingrich 4, Radanovich, McGovern 5.

South Africans Eliminate India

BARCELONA, Spain (AP)—South Africa defeated India 5-0 in their Davis Cup interzone semi-final Sunday to advance to the final against Spain in Johannesburg.

South Africa plays Spain in the final later this month or early next month. The winner meets Australia in Sydney for the Challenge Round.

Grocers Earn Hoop Profit From Hot Spud

Victoria Chinooks and Vancouver CYO Saints tossed the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League lead around like a hot potato over the weekend and permitted Vancouver IGA Grocers to ring up the biggest profit.

Clashing at Central Junior High School as they attempted to snap a deadlock for the top berth, Chinooks and Saints staged their expected cliff-hanger Saturday night.

Although they had a 10-point lead shaved in half during the hectic closing minutes, Saints held on to take that one by a 58-53 score.

It was a different story Sunday as the Chinooks combined a brilliant defensive display with some slick shooting and marched over the Saints, 66-42.

GROCCERS GAIN

While those two clubs were swapping victories, Grocers were merrily at work in Vancouver, collecting a pair of triumphs that elevated them into a three-way tie for the top.

Grocers extended the losing streak of University of Victoria Jayvees to eight games as they trimmed the winless Jayvees 93-62 Saturday and 81-49 Sunday.

Don Redmond dunked 26 points for IGA Sunday and Don Gately paced the winners Saturday with 23. John Levering had 12 for Jayvees in Sunday's game.

Nobody could get more than 14 points in the series at Central but that was a popular number.

Corky Jossul and Claire Wakefield each counted 14 for the Saints Saturday and Victoria's Ollie Moilanen matched that total.

When did Niagara come into the picture?

A medical bill. A clothing bill. A car repair bill. They all seemed to come at once. Jack needed money in a hurry.

Answer: A Niagara Loan. Jack talked it over with the manager of the nearest Niagara Office. Besides getting the money, he got a lot of good advice on budgeting. With a Niagara Loan, Jack was able to pay all his bills at one time. And repay the loan on easy terms to suit his budget.

Castaways Take Crucial Meeting

Castaways have shaken off their most persistent challenger and charged ahead of the pack in the Victoria Rugby Union's First Division.

They snapped a first-place deadlock with University of Victoria Vikings Saturday as they topped the Vikings 5-3 in a spirited, hard-hitting match at the Uvic campus.

Acting more decisively on their opportunities during the fast-moving tussle, Castaways took the decision on a second-half try, scored by Tom Browne and converted by Dave Clarke.

In a first division exhibition, Oak Bay Wanderers defeated Vancouver Brentonians 16-5.

Wanderers took a thumping from James Bay Athletic Association in a second division match and their fourth division club was clipped 12-3 by JBAA.

In another fourth division game, Cowichan downed Mount Newton 17-5 and Cowichan's third division squad turned back the Rainbow Sea Cadets 28-0.

Arnie Individual Champ As U.S. Duo Wins by 13

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Arnold Palmer, the easy-going golf master from Latrobe, Pa., was off to new conquests today after capturing his first World Cup individual prize in six tries as co-winner of the American team.

Jack Nicklaus, his 27-year-old team-mate, came in second as individual winner plus co-holder of the team trophy by the United States for the sixth time. "I owe my partner a great deal for getting those clubs right," said Palmer.

"I came here to help win the team championship," added Nicklaus. "If I couldn't win the individual prize I'm glad Arnold did."

Portland Ends Seattle Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Portland Buckaroos did more than their share to tighten the Western Hockey League standings during the weekend. The Buckaroos lost 4-2 in Portland Saturday to allow the Vancouver Canucks to escape the WHL cellar, and then defeat the first-place Seattle Totems 5-3 in Portland Sunday to end a record-breaking unbeaten streak by the league leaders.

In the only other game on the Remembrance Day weekend, Seattle dumped the Canucks 4-2 in Vancouver Friday before 3,830 fans.

Vancouver moved into fourth place before 6,201 Portland fans Saturday as Stan Gilbertson broke a 2-2 tie with a penalty shot late in the second period.

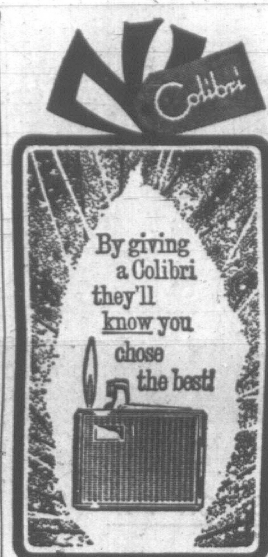

The Buckaroos atoned for the defeat on Sunday as they came from behind a 3-2 deficit with three goals in the third period before a crowd of 7,125 to clip Seattle.

The defeat was the first of the year for the Totems, who had set a league standard by going unbeaten in their first 10 games of the season. They had been tied twice.

Palmer, who nursed an eye scratched by sand from a trap shot for the last two days, fired a five-under par 67 in the final round for a total of 276.

Nicklaus and Charles tied for second place, five strokes behind Palmer.

Palmer got only $1,000 for the best individual score and shared $2,000 with Nicklaus for the team victory. Nicklaus and Charles split $500 for second place while Tony Cerda of Argentina won $400 for his 284 and third place, and Ted Makalena of Hawaii, fourth with 285, got $200.

"Our main purpose was winning the team championship that was our main goal," Palmer said.

Explain Viet War, Rector Tells LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson spent a whirlwind weekend defending his Vietnam policies, then listened, in church as a Virginia clergyman bluntly suggested the president should publicly explain the American role in the war.

This challenge was put directly to Johnson by Dr. Cotesworth Pinckney Lewis during Sunday services at Bruton Parish Episcopal Church in Williamsburg, Va. The Episcopal Church in the U.S. is part of the worldwide Anglican communion.

The president and Mrs. Johnson, daughter Lynda and her fiancé, Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb, sat in a front-row pew—barely 10 feet from the Episcopal rector—as he put his questions.

The Johnson administration's public information policies came under attack a few hours later from the Freedom of Information Committee of Sigma Delta Chi, an 18,000-member professional journalism society.

The committee said in a report that some of the administration's top officials have been "deliberately misleading the public, the press and the Congress through flat lies, through half-truths and through clever use of statistics that distort." It called the president's news conference "well organized for a White House snow job."

The report, released in advance of Sigma Delta Chi's national convention opening Wednesday in Minneapolis, Minn., charged the state and defence departments and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are the worst offenders in the public information field.

AWKWARD FINISH

For the president, the sandy-haired Dr. Lewis doubtless provided an unwanted climax to a 5,100-mile Veterans' Day weekend tour that took him from Fort Benning, Ga., to the carrier Enterprise off the California coast, then back east.

In appearances at military bases Friday and Saturday before going to Williamsburg, Johnson defended his Vietnam policy and appealed for united support in the war.

Dr. Lewis, however, told the president "there is a rather general consensus that something is wrong in Vietnam."

The clergyman went on: "We wonder if some logical straightforward explanation might be given without endangering whatever military or political advantage we hold.... While pledging our loyalty we ask respectfully why?"

The minister, described by parishioners as a conservative Southern Democrat with roots deep in Alabama, said: "We are appalled that apparently this is the only war in our history which has had three times as many civilians as military casualties. It is particularly regrettable that to most nations the struggle's purpose appears as a form of neo-colonialism."

When the rector escorted Johnson to the presidential limousine after the service, shook his hand and murmured a few words, Johnson simply nodded.

During this rather awkward tableau, about a dozen anti-war demonstrators across the street kept up a clearly audible chant of "Peace! Peace!"

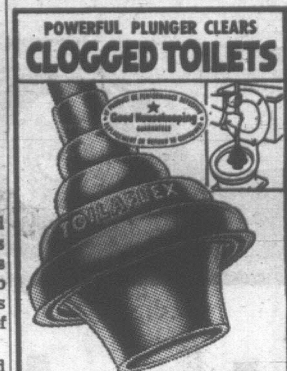

Dr. Lewis later was asked if he felt the American position in Vietnam was wrong. "I don't know," he said. "I would have to know more than I do now."

REDS SET UP UFO STUDY

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government has set up a commission to investigate reports of unidentified flying objects, informed sources reported Saturday.

The commission was described as under the direction of Gen. Anatoli Stolyarov of the Soviet Air Force.

Soviet authorities dismissed UFO stories as nonsense when they first started getting world attention in the 1950s. The press here did not mention rumors of sightings in the Caucasus, Siberia and elsewhere.

Party Can't Be Held Back, Von Thadden Tells Group

... 'opposition by 1969'

HANOVER (AP) — The new chairman of West Germany's ultra-nationalist party promised Sunday that the party will capture its first seats in the federal Parliament in the 1969 election.

Adolf von Thadden, the 46-year-old chairman of the National Democratic Party, praised the 1,400 delegates to the party's three-day congress for adopting a strong, nationalistic platform.

"This young party can no longer be held back in its growth," he told them. "If there were a federal election right now, we would get eight to 10 per cent of the votes."

"In any case we will be the opposition in the Bundestag in 1969."

This would make the NDP West Germany's No. 3 party, behind the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats, partners in the present coalition government.

Von Thadden, who is given much of the credit for his party's landing seats in six of the 10 West German state parliaments, is attacked by opponents as the purveyor of neo-nazism and acclaimed by supporters as the herald of a healthy new German national spirit.

ERASES NAZI GUILT

The party congress approved a platform calling for erasing the German feeling of guilt for nazism and for Hitler's attempted genocide of the Jews, removing all foreign troops from German soil, and reuniting East and West Germany without renouncing the former German territory now held by Poland.

Delegates brought the congress to a rousing, high-pitched climax with the singing of Deutschland Ueber Alles, the national anthem under Hitler that was prohibited for a time after the war.

The party's ranks contain former Nazis but the accent is on youth. The ideal the NDP offers Germany's youth is, in Von Thadden's words, "a free fatherland in an independent Europe of free nations."

Although Von Thadden was a member of the Hitler Youth, he never joined the Nazi party. His half-sister was executed in 1944 as a member of the plot against Hitler.

Group to Avenge Death of Guevara

BONN, Germany (AP) — A terrorist group which claims to have set off explosions at the Greek and Bolivian embassies in Bonn announced today it is planning new actions throughout the world to avenge the death of Ernesto (Che) Guevara.

The organization calling itself The Group of the 1st of May, made the announcement in a letter to the Bonn office of The Associated Press. The letter, typewritten in Spanish, did not say when or where the new actions might take place. It was mailed at a Bonn post office Sunday.

"Since the tragic and heroic death of (Che) Guevara, brought about by mercenary troops of Bolivian Gen. Rene Barrientos—trained and paid by Yankee militarists—our efforts to create an international movement of revolutionary solidarity call for an increase in direct actions throughout the world against representatives of North American imperialism and its lackeys," the letter said.

"This movement will try to see by future deeds and actions that from today on the crimes of imperialism and dictatorship and those in their service do not go unpunished."

The explosions at the Greek and Bolivian embassies in the early morning hours of Sunday caused minor property damage but no injuries. No arrests have been made.

Police Hunt Girl In Bed Bombing

TORONTO (CP) — Police today successfully held a sign-language interview with stock promoter Myer Rush in hospital and stepped up the search for persons who planted a time bomb under his hotel room bed Thursday night.

They are seeking all persons who talked to Rush since he moved from his home into the posh Sutton Place Hotel late in October, including a girl who was a frequent visitor to his room.

Rush was flung from his bed, his stomach and throat ripped by the early-morning explosion of the bomb which was wired to a cheap clock set between his mattress and its box spring.

He is said to be "holding his own well" but still in poor condition in hospital. He had brief moments of consciousness.

The 44-year-old Toronto businessman was to have appeared in court Friday for a hearing on charges connected with conspiracy in a $100,000,000 stock fraud.

One of the men wanted for questioning played a part in the 1961 beating of gambler Max Bluestein in a Toronto night club.

HOME GARDEN

Some Roots Need Special Winter Care

By HILDA BEASTALL

Some of the choicer summer flowering plants have small bulbs, or corms, which require special care during winter storage.

Two examples are tigridias, the Mexican shell-flower (or Tigerflower), and acidanthera, Abyssinian sword-lily.

Tigridias are showy, three large petals spread widely in blazing red, bright yellow, or rich pink, all with scarlet spotted centres.

A cidantheras are modest in color, white with purple throat, shaped somewhat like the primulinus gladiolus, and giving out a most wonderful perfume.

Neither are truly winter hardy except in sandy soils of frost-free gardens. Therefore the roots must be taken up by early November at least.

The corms (which are the roots of these plants) are small, and will dry out too much if they are stored like gladioli for instance.

Since it is difficult to provide in today's home the exact temperature and humidity for their wellbeing, the home gardener needs to find ways and means to keep a stock on hand.

One of the delights of gardening is being able to increase a favorite plant so that a quantity of it may be enjoyed.

COOL PLACE
An easy way to keep these small corms is in pots of soil, dry at the beginning of winter and given a little water by about mid-February. The pots can be in a cool place, and light is not important.

By mid-March, it is a good plan to transfer the corms into pots of rich soil, slightly dampened. Here they will begin to form roots.

Later the contents of the pots should be removed and without disturbing the roots, planted into a sunny place in the garden to bloom in summer.

The move outdoors should be made towards the end of April if top growth is not showing. If tops are growing, the pots will need to be outside for a few days to become acclimatized for the young tops will not withstand frost.

'Lot Less Mini-Skirts, Cowboys'

PHUOC BINH (Reuters)—South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu today threatened action against mini-skirts, snack bars and "cowboys" in Saigon to dull the sharp contrast of a war-torn country with a swinging capital.

It was Thieu's first details of an austerity program for Saigon which he hinted at during his inauguration Oct. 31.

"In the near future we can see less cowboys, less snack bars, less young men going around with nothing to do and less girls wearing mini-skirts along the roadside," he said here after inspecting the battle scene at Loc Ninh.

Saigon cowboys are Vietnamese teen-agers who wear tight western-style dungarees and buzz about the city on motorcycles. Some of them snatch handbags from pedestrians.

Many Saigon girls now wear mini-skirts instead of the traditional ao dai.

PREMIER Eisaku Sato of Japan flies to Washington today for talks with President Johnson and State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Flee from Congo

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—A group of 492 persons fleeing warfare in the Congo's Katanga province— including 288 armed men—has crossed into Portuguese Angola, Portuguese officials announced Sunday.

Sticky Stuff Urged For Rioters

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—Rioters would find themselves stuck together by glue if U.S. police accept a mob-control idea put forward by experts Saturday.

The Institute for Defence Analyses suggested police should try firing sticky strings or glue-covered bands into mobs to immobilize demonstrators by tying them together.

Other ideas submitted by the Institute to President Johnson's commission on law enforcement included:

Lowering of nets onto unruly crowds by hand or helicopter; use of plastic confetti to make the ground slippery; spraying crowds with foam or itching powder or firing tranquilizing darts to make demonstrators sleepy.

More use of dyes and markers to help pick out troublemakers was also proposed.

OTHERS SHIELD FINANCES

NDP Opens Cash Books

TORONTO (CP)—Leaders of the Ontario Conservative and Liberal parties said Sunday they are not prepared to follow the new Democratic Party's lead and reveal their financial accounts to the public.

The leaders were commenting on figures made public Saturday by the NDP showing that party was $88,776.94 in debt. The figures, prepared for the party's provincial council meeting here, showed that the NDP came out of the recent Ontario election campaign with a $41,205.86 debt.

The party budgeted $90,023.68 for expenses in the campaign, including $6,000 for the tour by provincial leader Donald McDonald and $53,723.68 for publicity. The money actually spent was $80,444.19.

Elmer Bell, president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Federation, said it was possible for any party to give a set of figures "and yet have thousands of dollars spent by friends and sympathizers."

If political donations were made tax-deductible it might be easier to check the accuracy of figures on donations.

"When that happens I'm prepared to review my position on this," Liberal leader Robert Nixon said his party would be prepared to make its campaign spending public when laws force all parties to open their books.

"I feel under the law requires all three parties to reveal their sources of funds, it is not up to us to do so."

MEMORIAL GATHERING at Victoria Cenotaph Saturday featured usual assembly of veterans and relatives of fallen servicemen at wreath-laying ceremony. An addition this year was presence at waterfront of destroyer escort HMCS Qu'Appelle. And shown at right is an unscheduled unit, members of the Peace Action League, led by Charles Barber, second from left. They displayed anti-war slogans in a 12-hour peace vigil. A league spokesman said,

"Our vigil was in no way hostile to the Remembrance Day service, but some veterans apparently got that impression."—(Bill Halkett Photos)

ONLY A FEW GRUMBLE

Vets Accept Presence Of War Dissenters

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Once again we gathered at the Cenotaph to remember fallen comrades. Once again we lauded them for their part in preserving our freedom. And one example of that freedom was a group of young men and women—not in the parade and not invited to the cenotaph—who demonstrated against war and the causes of war.

Twenty-two long-haired members of the Peace Action League (PAL) lined up alongside the armed forces assembled on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

They said nothing, but they displayed gruesome pictures of war victims and black-lettered slogans such as WAR DOES NOT END WAR.

"They should be kicked out," said one of the 1,500 veterans assembled in front of the cenotaph.

"They should be kicked round the block," said a second.

"No," said a third, "that is what the dictators would have done. We fought for freedom of opinion and these kids are part of it."

There was some difference of opinion whether PAL should be allowed to demonstrate during a service of remembrance. But no one asked them to leave and the service went on regardless.

It seemed as if there were more people on parade than there were watching and undoubtedly the public attendance was reduced by the fact the Cenotaph service was televised across British Columbia by the CBC.

Two large TV cameras took in the scene around the Cenotaph and combined, with the threat of heavy rain, to keep many at home.

But the rain never came. As the parade of veterans, servicemen and cadets assembled for the Two Minutes' Silence, the sun struggled through the grey clouds. A chill wind stirred the flags above the lawns of the Legislative Buildings, but it was never really cold.

The parade was marshalled by Lt. Cmdr. J. W. Stegen of the RCN Fleet School, Esquimalt, and led by the band of HMCS Naden. David Huggins of the Royal Canadian Legion was in charge of the veterans.

Three more Victorians have received the silver centennial medal issued by the office of the Secretary of State for services to the nation.

They are: Miss Ruth W. Cowper, director of nursing at the Victoria Veterans' Hospital for 10 years, who has been with the department of Veterans' Affairs for 20 years and served as a nurse with the Canadian Army during the Second World War;

John I. Rutley, 63, of 905 Burdett Ave., who has been with the Canadian Hydrographic Service since 1939 and is officer in charge of the chart compilation section;

Capt. J. H. Matheson, 58, of 20 Olympia Ave., senior captain ashore with the hydrographic service. He started as a seaman in 1929 and rose to be captain of the CGS Marabell and later of the CGS William Stewart.

In the parade were contingents from the Royal Canadian Navy, the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles; 155th Company, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps; the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's); the army, navy and air force cadets, the cadettes and wrenettes; the IODE; the Red Cross and the Women's Auxiliaries.

The beginning and end of the Two Minutes' Silence was marked by the firing of single rounds by the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery.

Laurence Binyon's famous

'Dear Hereos: You Deserve To Be Kings'

Instead of an essay, the Grade Sixers at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic School were asked to write a Remembrance Day letter to their neighbors in the Veterans' Hospital.

The boys and girls turned out between 60 and 70 letters and each was delivered to a veteran on Saturday.

The vets were deeply touched by the quaint expressions of goodwill the letters contained. Dear Veteran, Dear Soldier and Dear Hero.

One boy wrote: "You deserve to be kings," and a girl signed herself "Yours gracefully."

lines, "They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old," were recited by Clem Gill of the Pro Patria branch, Royal Canadian Legion.

Mr. Gill has fulfilled this office for more than 30 years. He joined up in Victoria in 1914 and served overseas with the 7th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force.

Seats were placed near the Cenotaph for old soldiers who are no longer able to march in the parade, and one of them was occupied by Col. Robert Longridge, who served with the British Army in the First World War and the Canadian Army in the second.

Rev. Douglas Kendall, padre at the Veterans' Hospital, said there was no bus to the Cenotaph this year, but a number of patients attended a Remembrance Day service in the hospital chapel. Among them were 41 amputees and 65 wheelchair patients.

Renovations Planned At St. Louis College

The financial burden of a proposed $1,500,000 Roman Catholic educational complex has resulted in the plan being drastically pared.

Under consideration had been a modern co-educational high school on the grounds of St. Ann's Academy on Humboldt.

It would have replaced the 103-year-old building which now houses St. Louis College.

An alternate proposal to spend about $500,000 to renovate the college has also been under consideration and this is the program that will now go ahead.

Msgr. Michael O'Connell, chairman of the committee studying the proposals, said today meetings had scaled down the ambitious high school plan to about $800,000.

But the parishes did not feel they could handle that sort of responsibility, he said. The committee is now examining detailed plans for the complete up-dating of St. Louis College, including addition of a gymnasium.

At the Cenotaph, Mrs. William Gibb of 4103 Torquay Drive placed a wreath on behalf of the bereaved mothers of Canada. Her son, Sgt. Stanley Alexander Gibb, was killed in Italy on Oct. 22, 1944.

An innovation at this year's service was the presence of the destroyer escort HMCS Qu'Appelle in the Inner Harbour. She berthed at the Black Ball Ferry dock and sounded her siren in salute while officers and men took part in a service on the upper deck.

Sentries at the Cenotaph were PO Earl Sharpe (RCN), Sgt. Leonard A. Quinlan (Army), Sgt. David J. Lloyd (RCAF) and Cpl. Edmund A. Kathol (RCMP).

The service, conducted by Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean DD, followed its time-honored pattern. The lament, Flowers of the Forest, was played by Pipe-Major Frank Knight and the pipe band of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

The hymns, The Silent Tribute and O Valiant Hearts, were sung and the service closed with the Last Post, Reveille and the singing of O Canada and God Save the Queen.

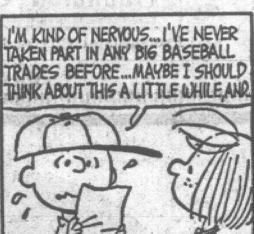

Wreaths were placed at the foot of the cenotaph by Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, Maritime Time Commander Pacific; David Groos, MP for Victoria, representing the government of Canada; and by Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston for Premier Bennett and the B.C. government.

Major Norman Featherstone placed a wreath on behalf of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, who was at the Cenotaph service in Vancouver; Lt. Col. H. C. Pitts represented the Canadian Army and Group Capt. Robert S. Turnbull, the RCAF. Mayor Hugh. Stephen of Victoria and the reeves of municipalities also placed wreaths.

After the service, the parade reformed and marched past a saluting base outside the Empress Hotel, where Rear-Admiral Charles took the salute.

Participating in the parade were the Princess Patricia's Association, the Black Watch Association, The Flags of Our Century Association and the Red Ensign and Union Jack Society.

At Esquimalt Cenotaph a wreath was placed by Commander R. B. Henning of HMCS Dockyard; at Oak Bay by Capt. M. C. Frewer, commander, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt; at Saanich by Capt. A. D. McPhee, and at Langford by Capt. R. H. Chicken.

City Alderman Seeks Long-Service Record

A second Victoria city council incumbent, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, today announced he will seek re-election.

Ald. Ian Stewart filed his nomination papers last week. A third Victorian to announce his intentions is William Thomas, a Daily Colonist reporter for the past two years.

Ald. Edgelow, a 14-year council member and senior alderman on city council, will establish a record for consecutive service as an alderman if he is re-elected.

Mr. Thomas, who came here from Quebec, is making his first bid for civic office in the capital city.

In announcing the filing of his nomination papers Mr. Thomas said he is running on a "right to know" bylaw platform. If elected he stated he will work for the introduction of a bylaw which would guarantee the public a knowledge of proceedings of meetings of public boards.

At present regulations governing meetings of civic government and committees are spelled out in detail by the provincial Municipal Act and can only be changed by the legislature.

Q. How many Canadians are serving with U.S. forces in Vietnam?

A. U.S. Army records do not contain such information, according to the chief of the Defence News Branch in Washington. The letter states that there are 9,930 aliens in the U.S. forces plus 14,594 Filipinos but there are no figures on Canadians.

Q. When does Easter Sunday fall in 1968?

A. April 6.

DUMPED FROM CAR

Theft Victim Bound, Abandoned in Park

A 19-year-old gas station attendant, bound and gagged, was dumped from a car in Gorge Park early Sunday after being robbed of $185.

Police said Gordon Enquist, 3165 Earl Grey St., worked at the Pay-N-Save gas station, 430 Gorge Road East, until 1 a.m.

He locked up the station and set off on foot for his home with $185 in a pouch.

On Burnside between Wasana and Earl Grey, two men grabbed him and pulled him into a car. They blindfolded and gagged him, then tied his hands behind his back.

After about a 20-minute drive, they dumped him out of the car in Gorge Park.

Enquist worked himself free and ran to the nearest house where he telephoned police. He was not available for an interview today.

CORONER PROBING WOMAN'S FATAL FALL

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre has ordered a post mortem in the death of a 23-year-old woman who fell down a flight of stairs Sunday.

Mrs. Donna Jackson, Suite 10, 2553 Quadra Street, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital after she fell at 3576 Calumet early Sunday morning.

Mr. St. Jorre said he will decide whether to hold an inquest after he has the results of the autopsy and the report of a Vancouver analyst.

UNION APPEAL HEARD HERE

Lawyer Claims Fine Highest Ever Imposed

A fine of $25,000 against the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union for contempt of court is "the highest imposed on any union in Canada or possibly the British Commonwealth."

Vancouver lawyer Harry Rankin made this statement in B.C. Appeal Court here today when he appealed the fine against the union and the one-year jail terms passed on two of its officials—union president Steve Stavens, 62, and secretary-treasurer Homer Stevens, 44.

He said the jail terms against Stavens and Stevens were unwarranted since neither had ever been convicted before.

FIRST OFFENCE

"As first offenders, they were at least entitled to probation on some term of bond," Mr. Rankin said. "I would also submit that a fine would have been more appropriate than a jail term in this case."

Today's hearing before Chief Justice H. W. Davey and two other justices of the B.C. Appeal Court was concerned only with the sentences against the union and its officials.

The appeals against conviction were lost last Tuesday when the court held that the union and the two officials were guilty of contempt of court. But a third man—business agent Jack Nichol—won his appeal against a one-year jail term.

Mr. Nichol appeared in court today as a spectator. Stavens and Stevens were unable to obtain release from Oakalla.

The convictions arose from an injunction issued last March in the Prince Rupert fishing strike, subsequent comments in bulletins and a union membership vote on whether the injunction should be obeyed.

Mr. Rankin referred to union president Stavens and secretary-treasurer Stevens as responsible members of the community.

Stavens, a native of Bergen, Norway, came to Vancouver in 1925 aboard a Norwegian freighter.

"He is not a professional trade unionist," counsel said, "but a man who has worked hard all his life for the betterment of conditions among fishermen."

Mr. Rankin said Stevens was born at Ladner in 1923 and came of an old-established fishing family.

"He is a responsible man whose whole life has centred around the industry and he has helped to stabilize conditions within that industry."

WANDERING FISHERMEN PAY $4,000

Four mainland captains of seiners caught fishing in a prohibited area have been fined $1,000.

Pleading guilty through counsel were Dick Anzulo, skipper of the New Queen; Joseph Brusie, of the Laredo; Nichola Jurinich, of the Miss Helen; and Olaf J. Wick, skipper of the Caamano Sound.

District court at the Law Courts here was told they were fishing in dense fog Aug. 14 on the westward side of a surfling imaginary boundary running across the western entrance to the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

They were picked up on a patrol vessel's radar.

'LUCRATIVE MARKET' AWAITS

N-Plants to Come in Compacts

Canadian scientists are making strides in developing a small and compact nuclear reactor power plant to meet a lucrative, untapped export market.

Such a plant could be dropped into sites in the far north and produce enough power to meet the supply now being used by a city the size of Vancouver.

It could also meet the needs of developing nations with power shortages and a commercially feasible nuclear power package would mean a valuable trade market, said John Barber today.

Mr. Barber is the public relations officer for the Whiteshell Nuclear Research Establishment, the federal government's $50 million centre 65 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

A staff of 675 has been concentrating on design of a portable plant in the six years the Whiteshell operation has been under way. About 1,200 persons will be working on the project by the time it reaches its planned capacity in 1972.

Solving the design problem lies not in the operation of reactors, said Mr. Barber, but in the development of materials to be used in their construction.

Researchers are hard at work discovering the critical materials which will make the small reactor financially feasible.

Canada has concentrated on reactors using natural uranium for fuel and heavy water as a moderator. American researchers have worked in a much broader research program but experiments now point to the Canadian formula as the one which may prove the most suitable.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Organize Your Home With Embossed Labels

By PENNY SAVER

The edict has gone forth—the Saver household will become organized. The other day I went to the drawer for my favorite sewing scissors. The drawer was filled with patterns. With unerring logic I looked in the pattern drawer and found a pile of material. After a long search I found the scissors under all the patterns in the first drawer.

Not that I demand perfection. One family I know is so super-organized that my ill-fated scissors would be filed, complete with cross references, under "cutters." All that I ask is that the proverbial place for everything not vary with every individual in the house.

With this in mind, I have purchased one of those handy machines that emboss letters and numbers onto a strip of adhesive-backed plastic. Now all my drawers and cupboards are clearly marked "sewing supplies," "patterns" and so forth. My husband has labeled the books in his workshop so that junior will know where the tools belong and a priceless turtle has been saved by a label on a lost lunch-kit. A sturdy model of this machine sells at $10.95 with refills of plastic tape at $1.01 each.

To organize my work desk I found an attractive box that is like nothing more than the Lazy Susan I use at parties. Made of simulated leather in green, black, wine or ivory, this handy organizer has lidded compartments for keys, clips, stamps and so forth. It sells at $3.50.

Bills and important papers are a different matter. For these I found an expanding file in gay stripes of red and mauve. Inside is marked with categories to anticipate your every need. There is also a matching file for recipes. Each file costs $5.75.

Now that my desk and drawers are shipshape I would like to expand through the rest of the house. So when my son asked what he could get his father for Christmas I suggested a tie valet. Made by those clever Italians it is a long bar in walnut tones with hooks for the ties that swing out to make selection of a tie easy while keeping the unit compact. Each tie hook is tipped with a piece of rubber to protect those expensive ties from damage. The cost of this item is $3.25.

If you would like to know where I found these organizers, please phone me at 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"I was going to rake the leaves, but just watching you has made my back ache too much."

Sturgis-Bailey Marriage Held in Salt Spring Home

A wedding of wide interest took place on Salt Spring Island, Saturday, when Iona Aileen Bailey became the bride of Ronald George Sturgis of Langley.

Rev. Harry Lennox, Vancouver, performed the afternoon ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Col. Charles E. Bailey and Mrs. Bailey of North Beach Road. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ellen Rose Sturgis, Vancouver.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of French blue silk lace over peau d'elephant in a matching shade. Of redingote design, the dress featured three-quarter length sleeves and a high neckline trimmed with a silk bow. Yellow roses and white carnations formed the bride's corsage and topped her whimsie veil.

Mrs. Lawrence Wright, Calgary, was bridesmaid in a straight-line dress with a high neck in peau d'elephant of the same color as the bride's. Her close-fitting hat in toning shades of blue and white was complemented by her corsage of white carnations and tiny white chrysanthemums.

Philip T. Sturgis, Edmonton, was best man for his brother and later proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Large yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated the home for the wedding. Only the immediate family were in attendance.

For the honeymoon in the interior of the province, the bride wore a matching knee-length silk jacket over her wedding dress. In addition she wore a black sealskin coat with white fur hat, white accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

The couple will make their home in Langley.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

They say that a journey of 1,000 miles begins with but a single step. The road to beauty, too, starts with a single step. Your ultimate destination — total loveliness — is reached by taking many little steps, all directed toward fastidious head-to-toe grooming.

You'll find that keeping helpful, handy tips filed in your beauty binder for quick reference can be the starting point on your "beautiful journey."

Begin your adventure with a clean slate. Always remember that makeup and fashion are the frosting on the cake — personal grooming is the basic necessity. You can't beat the appeal of a girl with the clean, sweet aura of allover cleanliness and health, a fresh, glowing complexion and shining, fragrant natural-looking hair.

Walk in the fresh air (whatever the weather) at least half an hour a day — an hour is even better — and treat your skin to the revitalizing oxygen. If you're worried about freckles, plan your airings before 12 noon or after 3 p.m. when the sun's rays are less intense.

Have your pharmacist put together an 8-ounce bottle of aluminum chloride (25 per cent) mixed with one-quarter ounce of 5 per cent urea powder for a most effective deodorant. It's sufficient to apply this chemical solution a few times weekly at night after bathing. Always apply before shaving or using a depilatory.

If you're sensitive to frequent use of a deodorant or antiperspirant, alternate your usual applications with a solution of baking soda (1 tablespoon to a cup of water) for sponging areas that perspire.

Don't forget those little hard-to-get-at places that you may not see, but the world can, i.e., the back of the neck (an astringent after bathing helps get it really clean) or your ears (cotton-tipped swabs are best cleaner-upper). Remove any run-over makeup around the hairline with a cotton pad moistened with astringent.

Don't discard bits and pieces of soap. Save them, tie in a terrycloth bag (made from an old washcloth) and enjoy this extra handy super-scrubber while bathing.

Use sea salt (available in health food stores) or coarse salt, or even table salt as an effective smoother to rub all over your body during a bath. Massage your dampened body with the salt, vigorously; follow with a clean, cool rinse — voila, that super glow!

Substitute cornstarch for talcum powder. Fill a bath powder box, add a fluffy puff and you're all set.

For in-between cleansing, use salt or baking soda on the corner of a dampened towel or washcloth to cleanse and brighten the teeth.

Exchange students Shizuko Ito and Mitsugo Akashi, at the University of Victoria, are seen with Mrs. John Paone, convener of the First United Church women's bazaar, to be held in Fellowship Hall, 932 Balmoral Road, this Saturday, from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. The two students will officially open the event, which has been organized on a Japanese theme.

OFFICIAL CALL

Lieut.-General L. C. Craigie, United States Air Force (Retd.) will visit Government House on Wednesday to make an official call on His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

From Toledo

Mrs. William Ferrell, Mrs. Denny Connor and Mrs. Gordon McIlton were here from Toledo, Ohio, for a 10-day visit. The visitors came to Victoria to attend the golden wedding anniversary celebrations of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. McDonald of Oak Street, with whom they have been staying. The first part of their visit they were house guests of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Treloar of Agnes Street. The visitors left for Ohio today.

Feted at Shower

A decorated wishing well held the gifts for bride-elect Miss Shirley Parkinson when she was entertained at a shower by Mrs. A. Toriglia in her Browning Street home. Red roses en corsage were presented to the honor guest. Her mother, Mrs. Ronald F. Parkinson, received pink carnations. Party games were played and a sandwich buffet supper was served. Guests included Mrs. A. McDougall, Mrs. N. Roos, Mrs. S. Oliver, Mrs. C. Hubbard, Mrs. M. Probert, Mrs. J. Hermans, Mrs. J. Barbillion, Mrs. M. Hennekes, the Misses Beth Oliver and Phyllis Parkinson. Gifts were also received from Mrs. J. W. Parkinson, the bride-elect's grandmother; Mrs. H. Gaudon and Mrs. E. Hampton.

INVESTITURE

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth will invest her 18-year-old son Prince Charles as Prince of Wales on July 1, 1969, it was announced today.

The title, created in 1801 after the English conquest of Wales by King Edward I, is the one usually held by the heir to the throne.

The investiture will take place in Caernarvon Castle, a medieval fortress in northern Wales.

Welsh authorities plan three months of celebration, including the lighting of beacons on mountain peaks and the commissioning of special musical and dramatic works. Charles celebrates his 19th birthday Tuesday.

RUSSIANS FIND FORMULA

WASHINGTON—The Russian embassy wives have discovered metrical, maidenform and miniskirts.

They have staged a fashion revolution. Once upon a time, it used to be easy to spot them at the annual October Revolution parties.

Even the young ones had dumpy figures along the lines of Nina Khrushchev, their hair was frizzled and their clothes were frumpy.

Not any more. The Soviet's 16th Street mansion was filled with pretty women last week as the Communists celebrated their 50th anniversary.

It is as if the Kremlin had sent them all to charm school. Their makeup is flawless. Many wear a fall, a wig, a wiglet, or at least an artificial dymel braid.

They buy Vogue patterns and handsome fabrics to be made up, and even Women's Wear Daily couldn't find fault with the results.

Huge RJH Bazaar Raises $7,200

At first glance, the Royal Jubilee Hospital looked like the centre of a disaster area on Wednesday. Cars lined adjoining streets in solid blocks and a steadily moving stream of people milled around the nurses' residence.

Those of the guests who are regular attendees at the annual bazaar of the hospital's Junior Auxiliary came prepared. They know that crowds are packed solid at any of the group's events and Wednesday's bazaar in the residence was no exception. Proof of this, even to those who were unable to attend, lies in the announced proceeds of $7,200.

DEAR ABBY...

Purely a Matter Of Personal Morals

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: I recently published a letter asking my opinion about letting a child see his mother in the nude. It produced an avalanche of mail. Here is the letter again, a repeat of my reply, and some typically vigorous reactions.

PS: I must say, on second thought, I agree with the reactions.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's all right for a little boy, say around four or five, to see his mother undressed? I have a friend who thinks it's perfectly all right to let her little boy hang around and watch her dress from the skin out and she thinks nothing of letting him come into the bathroom while she is in the tub. He comes in and asks her questions, or to just sit and visit while he gets his eyes full.

Maybe I am wrong, but I don't approve of this. My friend says it is better to let the boy know than to have him curious. What is your opinion?

DAILY READER.
DEAR READER: Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I still believe in modesty. A mother shouldn't make a federal case out of it if her four-year-old son accidentally catches her in the altogether, but the bathroom door should be locked while mother is bathing.

DEAR ABBY: Please reconsider your answer to Daily Reader. A four-year-old boy is not a dirty old man watching a stripper in a burlesque show. He is only a child wanting to be close to his mother. Why do you have to drag "sex" into everything? You and Dr. Freud would have made a peach of a pair!

DISGUSTED IN BUFFALO.

Speaks Tuesday

Dr. R. Oldham, director of the languages department, Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, will be the guest speaker when L'Alliance Française de Victoria meets on Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. He will speak on "La Vie Passionnée de Charlotte Brontë."

Dr. Oldham attended the University of British Columbia and received his doctorate from the Sorbonne. After his career in the Royal Canadian Air Force he was awarded the DFC, and also received La Croix de Guerre for his services with the French Air Force.

DEAR ABBY: I say it is better to have the natural curiosity of a youngster satisfied by seeing his own mother undressed than to satisfy it later with smutty magazines or, heaven forbid, with some sweet little 15-year-old girl down the block.

MICHIGAN MOTHER.

DEAR ABBY: I can forgive the ignorance of Daily Reader, but not yours, Abby! Ever since that first moment of birth, I've seen our son naked, so why shouldn't he see me naked? In our house nakedness is natural. Not flaunted, just natural.

When younger, our son (now 10) never found it necessary to chase little girls and pull up their skirts, as many of his friends did. And I'm sure that no young woman on a date with our son will ever be confronted with a clawing ape in a "give in, or get out" situation.

LIBBY B.

DEAR ABBY: Yes, you are old fashioned! Neither my wife nor I, nor our children have ever been ashamed of our bodies, clothed or unclothed.

Not so with my mother who was so "modest" she wouldn't even let a doctor examine her. On my father, who dressed and undressed in the clothes closet. Of course we "peeked" and developed unwholesome attitudes toward sex, family relations and marriage which, fortunately, we were able to overcome before we married.

Your advice is usually right on target, but this time you shot from the hip. Sincerely,

G.D., PALO ALTO.

DEAR ABBY: "Look the bathroom door," you advise. Never!

Six months ago when we first moved into this neighborhood, my four-year-old brought six of his new friends to meet me while I was in the bathtub. I shooed them out quickly. After dressing I went to the drug store and bought a large bottle of bubble bath, and now if they should come in, I will be modestly covered with froth.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom H. Wollison, 2989 Foul Bay Road, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their younger daughter, Joan Marion, to Mr. Charles David Skillings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Skillings, 1721 Rockland Avenue. The wedding will take place in St. Luke's Anglican Church, on Friday, December 1, at 7:30 p.m. Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff will officiate, assisted by Dean Brian Whitlow. The bride-elect is a graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospital's School of Nursing and her fiancé is a graduate of the University of British Columbia's faculties of commerce and law. (Chevrans Studio.)

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Psychologists say that the characteristics we have in youth are usually intensified as we grow older. I have often observed this. If a person is hard to get along with in early years, he or she is apt to be impossible in later years. If one is stingy when young, he is likely to be miserly later on.

If a person has a wonderful disposition and is understanding when youthful, he or she will probably be even more so after the experience of more years. If folks have a great sense of humor in youth, it will soften many a bump for them and those about them in older years. If a person withdraws from life and people during earlier years, his later years will be a real problem for him and those who try to help him. If a person is truly in love with life and finds every day an adventure and a blessing in youth it will be impossible for life to knock it all out of him or her in later years unless some devastating physical disaster overtakes them.

Therefore it seems wise to control and improve on any bad tendencies we may have and develop the good ones as the years go by. The same thing is true physically. It is possible to look at a teen-ager and be fairly certain what she will look like 10 or 15 years later. The same is true of a woman of middle age. The signs of what is to come are apparent, unless something is done about it.

The incipient double chin often shows up first during teenage. This may be due to overweight or poor posture or both. If the condition continues into middle age, it will become more pronounced then and in later years.

The shadow of a protruding abdomen and a dowager's hump haunt the figure long before they become a real problem. Why not take measures to correct or improve the condition before it gets worse, no matter what your age?

Poor posture is an important culprit in producing all of these handicaps, although overweight and lax muscles do a good job of habitizing. Investigate your posture and exercise to keep your muscles firm.

Here are a few things to remember about your posture. The way you carry your head is important. Do not "give in" at the back neckline. Do not stick your chin out or allow it to sink into your neck. Push toward the ceiling with the top of your head. This is corrective to the double chin and the dowager's hump.

Cactus and Dahlias Used for Decorations

The North American Benefit Association Review No. 1 held their annual bazaar in the Orange Hall recently and raised $150.

Mrs. Bertha McAllister opened the bazaar and spoke about the work of the organization. She was presented with a bouquet of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Enid Crowther, general convener, received red and white carnations in corsage. The organization is celebrating its 75th anniversary this year. Mrs. E. Longden was co-convener.

Bowls of yellow cactus and dahlias centred the head table which was covered with a lace cloth, and bowls of red and white chrysanthemums centred the guests' tables. Seated at the head table were Mrs. B. McAllister, Mrs. A. Ritchie, Mrs. E. Crowther, president of Review No. 1, and Mrs. K. Schmelz, pioneer president.

Mrs. Alice Ritchie and Mrs. C. Berry were responsible for the decorations of greenery and flowers in the hall.

Conveners for the various stalls were Mrs. K. Jackson and Mrs. J. Morrison, candy; Mrs. E. Longden, fancywork; Mrs. A. Taylor, penny auction; Mrs. K. Schmelz and Mrs. C. Payne, chicken dinner and contests, Mrs. H. Graas.

Serving tea were Mrs. A. Ritchie, Mrs. C. Berry, Mrs. R. Thompson, Mrs. H. Cox and Mrs. K. Jacques.

Mrs. J. Bowden handled the door receipts and tea tickets.

ADULT STUDIES

Grant Lack Hampers Greater Success

By ELIZABETH FORBES

One of the most interesting levels of education in the Greater Victoria area — and one of the least publicized — is the Institute of Adult Studies.

Opened a little over a year ago in the Ewing Building on what was the Lansdowne Campus of University of Victoria, the institute has been functioning nearly 16 hours every school day.

In its first semester it enrolled 325 full-time students and 800 evening students. This year these figures have risen to 468 during the day and an estimated 900 in the evening. An approximate 45 per cent increase.

All age groups are included from boys and girls who, for various reasons, opted out of school and now need better grades to ensure steady employment, to mature men and women wishing to up-grade their education to qualify for higher positions or to return to the world of work.

Another feature of the institute is a year-round testing and counselling service encouraged by principal H. A. Batey. Here, any adult, whether attending institute classes or not, has the privilege of meeting and talking to experienced people able and willing to give advice and guidance. In this way they are steered in the right direction at a saving in time and money.

As a pilot project, the Institute of Adult Studies has proved beyond a shadow of doubt that there is a great need for this kind of training in the province. People are eager to attend its classes. The staff is doing everything it can to absorb those who qualify.

However, the continued success of the school is hampered because it does not qualify for capital grants either for buildings or equipment under the Public Schools Act.

At present, no school board in the province can obtain government grants to establish schools for adults as there is no provision under the act for such schools to Grade 13 level. Any grants available are given toward instructors' salaries (at the unrealistic maximum of $1 an hour) and only in courses approved by the superintendent of education.

The institute's day classes are financed as a secondary school. In the evening however, although the same subjects are taught, sometimes by the same teachers, classes are designated as a night school and money for operating expenses takes a big drop.

The school functions in the Ewing Building on a year-to-year lease. Which means that if by any chance that building was needed next year for any other purpose, the Institute of Adult Studies could be without a home. Yearly rent paid to the University of Victoria for use of the building is $53,000.

Old-timers in Victoria will remember that this Lansdowne property was first acquired by the provincial government for a Normal School (the present Young Building with its clock tower). That building also served as a convalescent hospital in wartime. Later it was designated a college. And finally, with the newer Ewing Building, it was presented to the University of Victoria by the provincial government ... at a very nominal fee.

It would be a wonderful gesture if the university in its turn handed the property over to the school board as a permanent location for adult education. Of course, at the same nominal fee.

Another thing that seems very unfair to me as far as the Institute of Adult Studies is concerned is the fact that it does not qualify for student loans.

Yet the majority of students attending the Institute have little or no funds. Many adults are married. They work in the daytime to provide for their families and they attend school at night. In all age groups there is difficulty in finding even the relatively small $250 registration fee for the year's program.

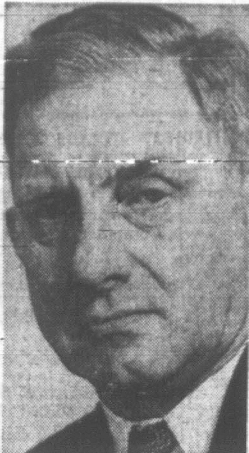

Student loans are available to any young person going on to university, interest-free until they start work. The same type of loan would ease the burden for many attending the Institute of Adult Studies in a determined effort to better conditions for themselves and their families. They deserve help just as much as any university-bound youth.

In a school like the Institute of Adult Education, where students are eager to learn and yet to not have access to books in their own homes, there is need for a good library. Yet there is no money available from any recognized source for such a library. And it is only through donations from organizations and individuals who believe the institute is meeting an urgent need, that a small library has been assembled and is now available to the students.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merrill advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

APPOINTED to the Northwest Territories Council for three-year-term is James Gordon Gibson, 63, of Vancouver. He was a Liberal member of the B.C. legislature for eight years and a retired logging industry executive. His son, Gordon, is executive assistant to northern development Minister Laing.

MINISTER DENIES 'WHITEWASH' CHARGE

Two More Persons Suffering From Fluorosis

DUNNVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Dr. George Waldbott of Detroit, a specialist in allergies and described as a world expert on fluorosis, said during the weekend that he has found two more Dunville area residents seriously ill with fluoride poisoning.

He also said that people in this area 30 miles southeast of Hamilton believe a three-man investigating committee headed by Dr. G. E. Hall, former University of Western Ontario president, will do a "whitewash job."

Dr. Waldbott said he has interviewed about 20 persons and has found four definitely suffering from fluorosis and suspects another four or five cases.

Three weeks ago he said on a C.B.C. television documentary that he had discovered two cases in nine persons interviewed.

Dr. Waldbott said in an interview he instructed those persons with what he diagnosed as fluorosis to see their physicians and seek immediate hospital treatment.

Those affected are not in immediate danger of death, Dr. Waldbott said. "But eventually they will die of kidney diseases or pneumonia. It might take three years or 20."

REBUKES CRITICISM

In an interview from his Point Perry home Sunday, Health Minister Matthew Dymond rejected criticism that the commission would do a less-than-complete job.

"I can't think they (the commission members) would have taken the commission if they were going to do a whitewash job."

Dr. Waldbott said he was not surprised that doctors failed to find any traces of fluoride poisoning in two area residents examined by him. The two were referred to a Hamilton bone specialist.

"Doctors are not aware of the disease unless it produces changes in the bones," he said. "What I am interested in is catching these cases before bone changes take place. This can take 20 or 30 years."

He suggested biopsies, the removal and examination of tissue, should be carried out. Fluoride could attack the liver, kidneys or other organs.

Two solutions to the Dunville problem, Dr. Waldbott said, are installation of further anti-air pollution equipment by the Electric Reduction Co. of Canada Ltd. at their fertilizer plant or company subsidization of suspected victims so they can move away from the area.

The disease is reversible, he said, and can be treated by eliminating fluorides from drinking water, air and food.

TWO DOLLYS and a Mame pose for the cameras at New York's St. James Theatre Sunday night after Pearl Bailey headed an all-Negro cast that took over the Broadway musical hit

Pearl Greeted With Roar After Taking Dolly Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — The long-running Broadway musical hit Hello Dolly! was taken over Sunday night by an all-Negro cast headed by Pearl Bailey and featuring Cab Calloway.

On hand was Carol Channing, who played the Dolly role first 1,596 performances ago.

A standing-room-only audience was on hand, with applause interrupting number after number.

On her first appearance, there was fully one minute of huzzahs before Miss Bailey could go on with the show.

A popular singer for years, Miss Bailey last was seen on Broadway some years ago in House of Flowers.

As she ad-libbed to her opening-night audience: "Y'know, I got a few words to say in this show."

The 49-year-old Miss Bailey, when she came to the actual Hello Dolly! number in the second act, was greeted with a roar from the audience as she came down the steps to approach the first of the stage.

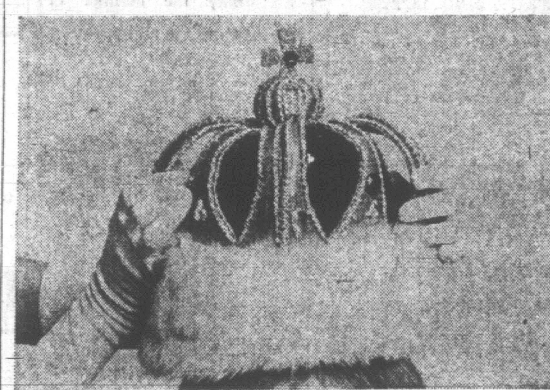

Calloway, who will be 60 this December, is internationally known as a singer and band leader. He plays the part of Dolly's affluent friend.

After repeated curtain calls, Miss Bailey and Miss Channing embraced over the footlights. It marked the first time that Miss Channing had seen the show as a member of the audience.

Among the junior leads in the show is Chris Calloway, Cab's daughter.

YOUNG ACTRESS APPEALING IN BRIDE ROLE

Play Runs Down Before Final Curtain

BAREFOOT IN THE PARK
By Neil Simon

Corie Bratter... Karen Austin
Telephone Repairman... Dan Christian
Delivery Man... Don Jacobs
Paul Bratter... Ross Petty
Corie's Mother... Margaret Hall
Victor Velasco... Robert Price

It doesn't have anything to say about anything and it runs down like an exhausted alarm clock minutes before the final curtain, but for most of its three acts, Neil Simon's comedy is highly amusing persiflage.

On opening night Friday at McPherson Playhouse the Bastion Theatre production dragged during the first act, sparkled through the second and did all that is possible with the third.

The play is no director's challenge but the small cast was well handled by Eugene Gallant with an efficiency and economy that kept it clean and brittle.

Newcomer Karen Austin is an appealing young actress who has style and vivacity in the role of the six-day bride whose idea of marriage is sharing madcap adventure and a walk-up eyrie of a fifth floor love nest.

The two really interesting characters in the script are, however, Corie's mother and her antic attic neighbor, Velasco.

In the case of Margaret Hall, who plays the mother, the role is well developed. There is warmth in the comedy and excellent timing with a real sense of mother-daughter relationship.

Robert Price on the other hand, gives us a less memorable portrayal than his part deserves. It comes out too straight. We should have been far more aware of Velasco's kookiness, both in appearance and mannerism.

Roles such as the young husband's are rarely particularly rewarding and Ross Petty underplays quite often when he should hold the scene on an equal level with another actor. He was at his best and showed considerable strength in the Act II, scene 2 quarrel episode.

Two brief characterizations that come off extremely well are provided by Dan Christian and Don Jacobs.

Glenn MacDonald's set design is adequate though not interesting and too surgically clean and brisk to provide much atmosphere.

This is a production that is smooth, light-hearted entertainment and as such it should bring pleasure to a lot of people its closing date, Nov. 25.

at McPherson Playhouse until Curtain time nightly is 8:30.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to April Chiu, age 11, of Vancouver, for her question:

Is it true that the first animals lived in the sea?

Our earliest ancestors sensed that their wonderful world had a past, that it took time and lots of sensible planning to arrange the complex realm of nature. They sensed also that life on earth had a beginning, a long-ago day when the plants and animals were created.

Thinking people all agree that the earth's teeming population of plants and animals were created in stages. Even the earliest inspired writers assumed this to be true, long before the Age of Science found the evidence to prove it. Those early writers were logical thinkers and to them it seemed reasonable that animal life began first in the sea. And although they didn't have a single scrap of scientific data to prove it, they were right. This astonishing report must be rated among the highest points of our history. Indeed it sprang from man's inspired intelligence, which is without question the crowning glory of all creation.

This human factor sets us apart, way apart from the less endowed population of the animal kingdom. Only man has the gift of conscious self-awareness. Only man can view and review himself, his actions and his motives. Only man can stand back and pause to observe the world objectively and use his talented mind to speculate on the related and inter-related items of nature, their past and their present. When a person feels wonder and curiosity about these relationships, he or she is expressing the highest attribute of creation — especially when those thoughts concern personal improvements and the sensible progress of all mankind.

First Form of Life

The Age of Science is prodded along by mankind's built-in awareness and curiosity. Time has taught us tried-and-true methods for seeking the tantalizing answers and fool-proof techniques for testing them. And the rewards of all this logical effort are stupendous. Every scientific advance gives us greater dominion over the realm of nature.

Whether animal life began in the sea may seem unimportant to human lives of the 20th century. But the health of mankind and his future food supplies depend on what biology learns about the living cell. The human body is composed of these miraculous units of life. As biology learns more of the cell, medical science learns more about how to keep us healthy. Scientists are sensible folk who assume that the best place to tackle a problem is at the beginning. And they agree that animal life began in the sea as single cells.

The world still teems with one-celled animals, full of clues to help us understand the complex human body. The sea, of course, covers most of our planet and the watery cradle is still the home of most of the earth's animal life.

Geological evidence suggests that animal life existed in the oceans more than 2,000 million years ago.

Postnasal Drip Not Serious

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

During my 25 years working in the Mayo Clinic, I must have seen hundreds of people whose main complaint was a postnasal drip. Most of them were greatly concerned because (1) they feared they had a dangerous inflammation of one or more nasal sinuses—and (2) they felt they must constantly be spitting out the material that came down the back of their throat. They had an idea that it was pus, and if they swallowed it, it would poison them.

I would send these people to able nose and throat specialists who would nearly always send the person back to me with the report (1) that there was no sinusitis; (2) the material dripping into the back of the throat was a harmless mucus; and (3) it should not cause any worry, it should be harmlessly swallowed.

If then I could convince the patient to forget the drip and to quit worrying about it, I could send him out well. If I could not convince him, he might keep going to one nose man after another for years.

Unfortunately, there are many persons in this world who spend their lives worrying themselves sick over some little physical or functional peculiarity which an insensitive, or non-worried, or too-busy-to-be-bothered about it person accepts without concern.

Some of us human beings are perfectionists and that is our trouble. Tell such a man he has a slight symptomless ruture in his midriff, or a few harmless diverticula (tiny outpouchings) on his large bowel, and he says to his surgeon, "Open me up and take those things off." I, a physician have them, and it would never occur to me to be operated on because of them.

Able heart specialists will often advise their patients who have spells of angina pectoris (heart pain) to try what is called the Valsalva Manoeuvre. Sometimes it will quickly relieve the pain. What the person does is to take a deep breath and then try to force it out while keeping the throat and mouth closed so tight that no air can get out.

FAMILY SHOE CENTRE

MEMORIAL GATHERING at Victoria Cenotaph Saturday featured usual assembly of veterans and relatives of fallen servicemen at wreath-laying ceremony.

An addition this year was presence at waterfront of destroyer escort HMCS Qu'Appelle. And shown at right is an unscheduled unit, members of the Peace Action League, led by Charles Barber, second from left. They displayed anti-war slogans in a 12-hour peace vigil. A league spokesman said,

"Our vigil was in no way hostile to the Remembrance Day service, but some veterans apparently got that impression."—(Bill Halkett Photos)

ONLY A FEW GRUMBLE

Vets Accept Presence Of War Dissenters

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Once again we gathered at the Cenotaph to remember fallen comrades.

Once again we lauded them for their part in preserving our freedom. And one example of that freedom was a group of young men and women—not in the parade and not invited to the cenotaph—who demonstrated against war and the causes of war.

Twenty-two long-haired members of the Peace Action League (PAL) lined up alongside the armed forces assembled on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

They said nothing, but they displayed gruesome pictures of war victims and black-lettered slogans such as WAR DOES NOT END WAR.

"They should be kicked out," said one of the 1,500 veterans assembled in front of the cenotaph.

"They should be kicked out," said a second.

"No," said a third, "that is what the dictators would have done. We fought for freedom of opinion and these kids are part of it."

There was some difference of opinion whether PAL should be allowed to demonstrate during a service of remembrance. But no one asked them to leave and the service went on regardless.

Two large TV cameras took in the scene around the Cenotaph and combined, with the threat of heavy rain, to keep many at home.

But the rain never came. As the parade of veterans, servicemen and cadets assembled for the Two Minutes' Silence, the sun struggled through the grey clouds. A chill wind stirred the flags above the lawns of the Legislative Buildings, but it was never really cold.

The parade was marshalled by Lt. Cmdr. J. W. Stegen of the RCN Fleet School, Esquimalt, and led by the band of HMCS Naden. David Hughes of the Royal Canadian Legion was in charge of the veterans.

Three More Victorians Get Medals

Three more Victorians have received the silver centennial medal issued by the office of the Secretary of State for services to the nation.

They are: Miss Ruth W. Cowper, director of nursing at the Victoria Veterans' Hospital for 10 years, who has been with the department of Veterans' Affairs for 20 years and served as a nurse with the Canadian Army during the Second World War;

John I. Rutley, 63, of 905 Burdett Ave., who has been with the Canadian Hydrographic Service since 1930 and is officer in charge of the chart compilation section;

Capt. J. H. Matheson, 58, of 20 Olympia Ave., senior captain ashore with the hydrographic service. He started as a seaman in 1923 and rose to be captain of the CGS Marbell and later of the CGS William Stewart.

In the parade were contingents from the Royal Canadian Navy, the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles; 155th Company, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps; the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's); the army, navy and air force cadets, the cadettes and wrenettes; the IODE; the Red Cross and the Women's Auxiliaries.

The beginning and end of the Two Minutes' Silence was marked by the firing of single rounds by the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery.

'Dear Heros: You Deserve To Be Kings'

Instead of an essay, the Grade Sixers at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic School were asked to write a Remembrance Day letter to their neighbors in the Veterans' Hospital.

The boys and girls turned out between 60 and 70 letters and each was delivered to a veteran on Saturday.

The vets were deeply touched by the quaint expressions of goodwill the letters contained. Dear Veteran, Dear Soldier and Dear Hero.

One boy wrote: "You deserve to be kings," and a girl signed herself "Yours gracefully".

lines, "They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old," were recited by Clem Gill of the Pro Patria branch, Royal Canadian Legion.

Mr. Gill has fulfilled this office for more than 30 years. He joined up in 1914 and served overseas with the 7th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force.

Seats were placed near the Cenotaph for old soldiers who are no longer able to march in the parade, and one of them was occupied by Col. Robert Longridge, who served with the British Army in the First World War and the Canadian Army in the second.

Rev. Douglas Kendall, padre at the Veterans' Hospital, said there was no bus to the Cenotaph this year, but a number of patients attended a Remembrance Day service in the hospital chapel. Among them were 41 amputees and 65 wheelchair patients.

Renovations Planned At St. Louis College

The financial burden of a proposed $1,500,000 Roman Catholic educational complex has resulted in the plan being drastically pared.

Under consideration had been a modern-co-educational high school on the grounds of St. Ann's Academy on Humboldt.

It would have replaced the 103-year-old building which now houses St. Louis College.

An alternate proposal to spend about $500,000 to renovate the college has also been under consideration and this is the program that will now go ahead.

Msgr. Michael O'Connell, chairman of the committee studying the proposals, said today meetings had scaled down the ambitious high school plan to about $800,000.

But the parish did not feel they could handle that sort of responsibility, he said.

The committee is now examining detailed plans for the complete up-dating of St. Louis College, including addition of a gymnasium.

At the Cenotaph, Mrs. William Gibb of 4103 Torquay Drive placed a wreath on behalf of the bereaved mothers of Canada. Her son, Sgt. Stanley Alexander Gibb, was killed in Italy on Oct. 22, 1944.

An innovation at this year's service was the presence of the destroyer escort HMCS Qu'Appelle in the Inner Harbor. She berthed at the Black Ball Ferry dock and sounded her siren in salute while officers and men took part in a service on the upper deck.

Sentries at the Cenotaph were PO Earl Sharpe (RCN), Sgt. Leonard A. Quinlan (Army), Sgt. David J. Lloyd (RCAF) and Cpl. Edmund A. Kathol (RCMP).

The service, conducted by Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean DD, followed its time-honored pattern. The lament, Flowers of the Forest, was played by Pipe-Major Frank Knight and the pipe band of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

The hymns, The Silent Tribute and O Valiant Hearts, were sung and the service closed with the Last Post, Reveille and the singing of O Canada and God Save the Queen.

Wreaths were placed at the foot of the cenotaph by Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, Maritime Commander Pacific; David Groos, MP for Victoria, representing the government of Canada; and by Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston for Premier Bennett and the B.C. government.

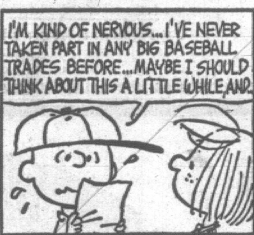

Major Norman Featherstone placed a wreath on behalf of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, who was at the Cenotaph service in Vancouver; Lt. Col. H. C. Pitts represented the Canadian Army and Group Capt. Robert S. Turnbull, the RCAF.

Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria and the reeves of municipalities also placed wreaths.

After the service, the parade reformed and marched past a saluting base outside the Empress Hotel, where Rear Admiral Charles took the salute.

Participating in the parade were the Princess Patricia's Association, the Black Watch Association, The Flags of Our Century Association and the Red Ensign and Union Jack Society.

At Esquimalt Cenotaph a wreath was placed by Commodore R. B. Henning of HMC Dockyard; at Oak Bay by Capt. M. C. Frewer, commander, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt; at Saanich by Capt. A. D. McPhee, and at Langford by Capt. R. H. Chiklen.

DUMPED FROM CAR

Theft Victim Bound, Abandoned in Park

A 19-year-old gas station attendant, bound and gagged, was dumped from a car in Gorge Park early Sunday after being robbed of $185.

Police said Gordon Enquist, 3165 Earl Grey St., worked at the Pay-N-Save gas station, 430 Gorge Road East, until 1 a.m.

He locked up the station and set off on foot for his home with $185 in a pouch.

On Burnside between Wasana and Earl Grey, two men grabbed him and pulled him into a car. They blindfolded and gagged him, then tied his hands behind his back.

After about a 20-minute drive, they dumped him out of the car in Gorge Park.

Enquist worked himself free and ran to the nearest house where he telephoned police. He was not available for an interview today.

CAR SOUGHT

Saanich police are looking for a 1959 Chevrolet four-door sedan with a yellow bottom and dark green top in connection with the incident.

Thieves also broke into a coin laundry over the weekend. Cash boxes were pried open on 13 washing machines at the White Swan Coin Laundry, 1811 Fort St.

Police report an estimated $75 to $100 in small change was taken.

The only machines left untouched were those facing the Fort St. window of the store.

The laundry was unlocked at 7 a.m. Sunday and the theft was not discovered until 8:15. Police surmise the robbery may have occurred in that period.

UNION APPEAL HEARD HERE

Lawyer Claims Fine Highest Ever Imposed

A fine of $25,000 against the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union for contempt of court is "the highest imposed on any union in Canada or possibly the British Commonwealth."

Vancouver lawyer Harry Rankin made this statement in B.C. Appeal Court here today when he appealed the fine against the union and the one-year jail terms passed on two of its officials—union president Steve Stavenes, 62, and secretary-treasurer Homer Stevens, 44.

Rimmer Wins Trail Ride

Thirty-six riders took part in the Garden City trial ride over a one and a half-hour, 10-obstacle course at Beaver Lake Sunday.

Winners were: Senior — J. Heather Rimmer on Sabre-Lee-Rings, 11½ points; 2. Neil McDonald on Patchy-L, 10½ points. Junior — J. Jimi Bessenden on Joe, 10½ points. 2. Pat Owen on Some-Royal-Flush, 9½ points. 3. Geraldine Peet on Kel-Shee, 8½ points.

FIRE DAMAGE HITS $2,000

A city meat market suffered an estimated $2000 damage in a fire Saturday. Firemen were called to Harvey's Meat Market 2709 Quadra Street at 4:30 p.m.

Fire officials report the fire apparently started in rubbish in a basement crawl space.

The crawl space and one wall were heavily damaged.

Mr. Rankin argued the fine was "excessive" and that it would cause hardship in "a small, independent national union composed of only 7,000 members."

He said the jail terms against Stavenes and Stevens were unwarranted since neither had ever been convicted before.

FIRST OFFENCE

"As first offenders, they were at least entitled to probation on some term of bond," Mr. Rankin said. "I would also submit that a fine would have been more appropriate than a jail term in this case."

Today's hearing before Chief Justice H. W. Davey and two other justices of the B.C. Appeal Court was concerned only with the sentences against the union and its officials.

The appeals against conviction were lost last Tuesday when the court held that the union and the two officials were guilty of contempt of court. But a third man—business agent Jack Nichol—won his appeal against a one-year jail term.

Mr. Nichol appeared in court today as a spectator. Stavenes and Stevens were unable to obtain release from Oakalla.

The convictions arose from an injunction issued last March in the Prince Rupert fishing strike, subsequent comments in bulletins and a union membership vote on whether the injunction should be obeyed.

Mr. Rankin referred to union president Stavenes and secretary-treasurer Stevens as responsible members of the community.

Stavenes, a native of Bergen, Norway, came to Vancouver in 1925 aboard a Norwegian freighter. "He is not a professional trade unionist," counsel said, "but a man who has worked hard all his life for the betterment of conditions among fishermen."

Mr. Rankin said Stevens was born at Ladner in 1923 and came of an old-established fishing family.

"He is a responsible man whose whole life has centred around the industry and he has helped to stabilize conditions within that industry."

The hearing ended at 1:25 this afternoon and judgment was reserved.

WANDERING FISHERMEN PAY $4,000

Four mainland captains of seiners caught fishing in a prohibited area have been fined $1,000.

Pleading guilty through counsel were Dick Anzulovich, captain of the New Queen; Joseph Brusio, of the Laredo; Nicholas Jurinich, of the Miss Helen; and Olaf J. Wick, skipper of the Caamano Sound.

District court at the Law Courts here was told they were fishing in dense fog Aug. 14 on the westward side of a sunline imaginary boundary running across the western entrance to the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

They were picked up on a patrol vessel's radar.

City Alderman Seeks Long-Service Record

A second Victoria city council incumbent, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, today announced he will seek re-election.

Ald. Ian Stewart filed his nomination papers last week. A third Victorian to announce his intentions is William Thomas, a Daily Colonist reporter for the past two years.

Ald. Edgelow, a 14-year council member and senior alderman on city council, will establish a record for consecutive service as an alderman if he is re-elected.

'LUCRATIVE MARKET' AWAITS

N-Plants to Come in Compacts

Canadian scientists are making strides in developing a small and compact nuclear reactor power plant to meet a lucrative, untapped export market.

Such a plant could be dropped into sites in the far north and produce enough power to meet the supply now being used by a city the size of Vancouver.

It could also meet the needs of developing nations with power shortages and a commercially feasible nuclear power package would mean a valuable trade market, said John Barber today.

Mr. Barber is the public relations officer for the Whiteshell Nuclear Research Establishment, the federal government's $50 million centre 65 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

A staff of 675 has been concentrating on design of a portable plant in the six years the Whiteshell operation has been under way. About 1,200 persons will be working on the project by the time it reaches its planned capacity in 1972.

Solving the design problem lies not in the operation of reactors, said Mr. Barber, but in the development of materials to be used in their construction.

Researchers are hard at work discovering the critical materials which will make the small reactor financially feasible.

Canada has concentrated on reactors using natural uranium for fuel and heavy water as a moderator. American researchers have worked in a much broader research program but experiments now point to the Canadian formula as the one which may prove the most suitable.

'INCREASE NOT JUSTIFIED'

Premier Uses Parables To Blast Tax Hike

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett used parables from "The Good Book" and his own budget speeches today to lash at proposed federal tax increases.

"You can't grow grapes from thorns, my friends," he told a 12-minute press conference that saw him hardly pause for breath as he poured out a stream of criticism at the Liberal party.

"There's only one problem in the country and that's the Liberals in Ottawa—and (B.C. Liberal leader) Perrault here," he said.

"If (Federal Finance Minister) Sharp said increase taxes 50 per cent on the workers, I suppose Liberal Perrault would say, 'Yes sir, yes sir.'"

"That shows how bankrupt they are... they don't listen to the Good Book."

Mr. Bennett said Ottawa has failed to heed the biblical injunction to use "our resources and talents to prosper."

"They've been leading the people up the garden path with spend, spend, spend and debt, debt, debt."

Mr. Bennett said a tax increase was not justified during a period of unemployment.

"It's the wrong approach, it's the wrong medicine," he said.

Asked what the right medicine was, Mr. Bennett replied:

"I've been prescribing it in every budget since I've been premier and finance minister."

'SIMPLE COMMON SENSE'

"All these people can't understand simple common sense figures."

"This little boy who's been trying to undermine Mr. Pearson, this little boy (Registrar General) Turner says in Prince Rupert he doesn't understand the premier's financing.

"He certainly doesn't because it's deficit financing only for the Liberal party."

He inserted his version of a "nutshell history" of British Columbia into his comments on the tax increase proposal.

In 1871 the governors of B.C. "got itself into a financial jam. They owed $1.5 million which they couldn't pay... and because of this financial jam they had two choices — one was to join the U.S. and the other Canada."

'FED UP WITH THEM'

"The British government got fed up with them and so they passed an act joining Canada."

"If British Columbia had been in a better financial position it could have made a much better arrangement (within Confederation)," he said.

Mr. Bennett said history repeated itself in the 1930s when a financially-overextended provincial government found it could not meet its debt obligations and so entered the Rowell-Sirois commission hearings "from a point of weakness."

"Then, in 1952, when Social Credit became government and I became government leader, the province was in terrible financial shape."

He said net debt exceeded net assets and there were great deficiencies in the province's hospitals, schools and transportation network which his administration quickly corrected.

"We took British Columbia from a have-not province to the No. 1 have-province — and Ottawa wants everything we get eight."

He declined to comment on a suggestion by Dr. Barber that lower wages in Canada allowed management to use practices that were less efficient than those in the U.S.

He quoted the fourth annual review of the Economic Council of Canada which says productivity is affected by the way the work is organized in a given plant, not by the plant's size.

If wage parity with the U.S. was demanded by Brantford workers, many changes might be made in the manufacturing process.

have, they want to drain B.C. like a goblet."

Mr. Bennett said this was proved by the recent off-shore

CBC Board Raps LaMarsh Charges

Resignation Plan Vetoed

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation today categorically rejected Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh's statement that unspecified areas of the corporation suffered from "rotten management."

In a statement issued at 1 p.m. the board of directors of the CBC said Miss LaMarsh's statements were "utterly without practical value and gratuitously offensive."

The statement added that the directors believed "it is important to reject the minister's utterances and to hope that they soon will be forgotten as they deserve to be."

The release indicated that the directors considered resigning en masse during a meeting Sunday but decided against it.

"The directors have decided to carry on with their trust and to maintain the stability and continuity of the corporation," the statement said.

PARLIAMENT

The CBC release said the minister's remarks were "a regrettable lapse, particularly from the minister through whom the CBC reports to Parliament. General attacks of this nature on public officials or Crown corporations are foreign to the Canadian political tradition."

Prime Minister Pearson has called Miss LaMarsh in to discuss the statement when she returns from a visit to Labrador later today.

Pearson refused to comment on the release when it was raised in the House of Commons by former justice minister and Conservative frontbencher E. Davie Fulton.

The CBC board said it was "profoundly distressed" by the minister's "rotten management" statement two weeks ago.

The directors charged that Miss LaMarsh's statement added fuel to "the climate of political attack" against the coast-to-coast television and radio network.

HAS REFUSED

Miss LaMarsh has steadfastly refused to expand on her charge of "rotten management" or to apologize for making it.

In a scathing exchange of letters between Miss LaMarsh and CBC president Alphonse Ouimet Nov. 3, the executive demanded the names of his offending managers and the cabinet minister more or less told him to mind his own business.

Ouimet said he was astonished that Miss LaMarsh did not reveal her criticism of management to him so that the charges could be investigated and "appropriate action" taken.

"I must reject the implication in your letter that I, a minister of the Crown, am in some way responsible or answerable either to you or the corporation," Miss LaMarsh shot back.

$3 Million

LONDON (AP)—Raiders broke into the London headquarters of a giant chain store co-operative during the weekend and ransacked 600 safety deposit boxes in an underground strong-room, police said today.

First reports estimated the haul at £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) but a store executive said this was high.

Police said the gang cut through a two-foot thick steel door and a grille with homemade thermal lances, to reach the boxes.

Detectives found jewelry scattered about the strong room, indicating the thieves were going strictly for cash.

Thermal lances cut faster, deeper and more quietly than oxy-acetylene torches or gelignite charges.

CUTS CONCRETE

It can cut through solids — even concrete — with the tremendous heat of pure oxygen. Oxygen reacts with iron rods packed in a tube to produce heat up to 4,654 degrees.

The headquarters in the Stratford, section of East London is the depository for huge sums spent by Britons in the various "co-ops" which function as a giant chain-store system.

The master safe and some deposit boxes were burned down and rifled, police said.

The co-operative system is shared by the customers who can buy anything they need from breakfast cereal to a bicycle, have it listed in their stamps book and then receive discounts at various periods.

Many small communities as well as the big cities have co-op stores.

CAR CRASH KILLS 2 NEAR DUNCAN

Island Hunting Mishap Takes Life of Boy, 13

Four persons were killed in holiday weekend accidents on Vancouver Island.

A 13-year-old boy was killed in a hunting accident; two women died in a head-on car crash and a girl died when struck by a car.

A bullet in the neck took the life of Edward George LeBus of Royston who was on a hunting trip with members of his family and friends.

The accident occurred about noon Sunday, six miles east of Gold River.

Mrs. Bernice Constance Thom, 43, of 645 Beatrice Street, Vancouver, and her mother, Mrs. Kathleen McChristie, 74, of Sudbury, Ont., died Saturday afternoon when their car was in a head-on collision with one driven by Alex Crabbe of Chemainus, RCMP said.

The crash occurred on the Trans-Canada Highway two miles north of Duncan.

Police said Crabbe was overtaking another car when the collision occurred.

Crabbe, 27, a Chemainus radio station salesman and announcer, who had just completed a commentary on a cenotaph service, escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Stanley Thom, 47, suffered a broken leg and facial cuts in the crash. He was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital where he is in good condition.

Mrs. McChristie was visiting her daughter and son-in-law and was being taken on the tour of the Island.

Juliette Aline Dion, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dion, 500 Bruce Avenue, Port Alberni, died as she and three companions were walking abreast along Grandview Road about 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Miss Dion, who was dead by the time police arrived, was struck by a car driven by Dino Pavan, 207 15th Avenue, Port Alberni. She was flung into the ditch by the impact.

A second hunting accident in the Gold River area sent a Port Alberni man to hospital.

Frank Wolf is in good condition in Campbell River Hospital suffering a neck wound which he received when hunting with his brother Martin and Antoine Rous.

Police said the accident occurred about eight miles north of Gold River about 7 a.m. Sunday when Rous fired at what he thought was a deer.

The three men had been in the area since Friday.

THROUGH ARTS, CRAFTS

Therapists Wage a War On Boredom, Depression

By TED GASKELL

No matter how philosophical a man might want to be, it's hard to fight off depression when confined to hospital after an active life.

In the Veterans' Hospital, on Richmond Road, there are men incapacitated in war who are having a battle waged on their behalf by the Red Cross Arts and Crafts centre.

This is another agency of Red Cross which is getting support from the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal for $600,000.

This service is not only keeping the hands of these veterans busy. It's also helping them to fight boredom and depression.

All manner of patients work on arts and crafts — heart cases, paraplegics, multiple sclerosis — victims, men who have only the use of one hand. All are kept busy either in the basement workshop, or working on small projects in their hospital wards.

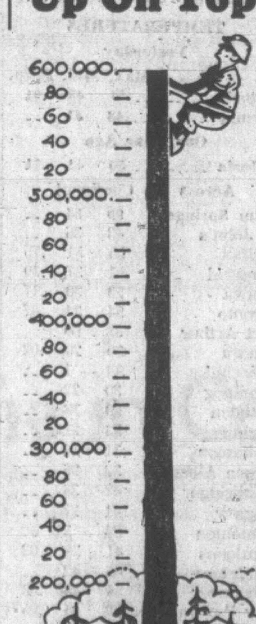

And they do beautiful work. Ice cream tubs become waste baskets covered with bright pictures from greeting cards. Copper work is excellently done. Leatherwork is popular for those who can use both hands. So is the making of stuffed toys.

But the eye-catcher is the hand weaving. Looms are set up by volunteers and the patients weave intricate and highly colorful patterns into place mats.

Put Him Up On Top

Official audited figure at noon today for the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal campaign was $523,123 or 87.1 per cent of the required $600,000.

Weaving is excellent therapy because it can be done by a person who only has the use of one hand, says senior supervisor Miss Alma Gorton, who has been working in arts and crafts therapy for 17 years.

"It's also important because they are usually making something for members of their families. It's important to be doing something for somebody else."

"Down here they are away from their rooms and they are happier for it. They are also making friends with others," she said.

Sometimes it takes a long time to get a man out of his room. One man worked on small projects from his bed and it was two years before he could be encouraged to join the others in the workshop.

Not all the men are patients. They are veterans who have been in the hospital and go back to boarding homes after discharge.

"We welcome them. After being in hospital with other veterans they find their boarding home rooms lonely."

Support of the centre comes from the Red Cross but the patients take the profit from their handicrafts after materials have been paid for.

Accordianist Brilliant Player

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Leo Aquino, who played an accordion recital in the McPherson Playhouse Sunday afternoon, is an unusually brilliant accordionist.

Such a player, one who treats his accordion as the serious musical instrument it becomes in his hands, improves the status of accordions everywhere.

Leo Aquino's technical superiority and tasteful musical arrangements almost completely overcame the limitations of his accordion's reedy tone and breathing action.

The audience enthusiastically applauded all his numbers and forced him to return for two encores. Some of his more delicate pieces showed how sincere and thoughtful a musician he is.

HAUNTING PIECE

Perhaps the most haunting piece was Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Oriental Romance," which emphasized the clarity and sweet tone of the high notes.

Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso op. 14," particularly in the scale passages, showed to advantage his amazing manual dexterity. Remarking that it was an instrument so constructed were the trills in Mozart's "Minuet in D" and the staccato notes and rhythmic emphasis in Bach's "Gigue."

As an arranger he brought out the strong discordant chords of Sibelius' "Valse Triste" and his own composition "Reflections of Spain" was a well-executed example of music most suitable to the accordion.

Dancers from the Florence Clough Dance Studio who made up the rest of the program, suffered throughout the embarrassment of sadly inadequate piano accompaniment.

Janet Purcell danced "Clair de Lune" with accuracy and some skill but her tendency to a rather heavy interpretation of the mood was perhaps, accentuated by the short straight tunic she wore.

With Julie Cox, she danced a pretty duet, "Le Papillon et la Rose," which was much enhanced by appropriately bright costumes.

The Rose danced beautifully but the butterfly, though she moved with grace, tended to hover rather menacingly.

Several of the girls who took part in "Ballet Blanc," particularly those who were featured, danced very well; but the difficulty of working on so limited a stage made the ensemble look rather untidy at times.

The glittering military tap dance depended for its success on precision in steps and formations.

The nervousness or lack of skill in one or two of the dancers, deprived this dance of the necessary precision despite the energetic efforts of most of the dancers.

The program was under the auspices of the Victoria Musical Arts Society.

BLOOD WEDDING WORTH SEEING

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Bastion Theatre's Studio production of Garcia Lorca's "Blood Wedding," which opened Friday night, is well worth seeing.

Director Peter Mannering chose this difficult poetic drama because he wished to expose both actors and audiences to good, but unfamiliar plays.

Yet another variation on the age-old ballad theme of a bride running away on her wedding night, the play is made distinctive by its Spanish setting, beautifully evoked by appropriate guitar music, and poetic symbolism which is not too subtle for the average playgoer to appreciate.

In "Blood Wedding," 1933, there is a clear echo of Synge's elegiac "Riders to the Sea," 1905, but the Spanish play lacks some of the poignancy of the Irish drama. Its action is spread over several families and moves from scene to scene whereas Synge's is set in one room and centred entirely on one bereaved family.

This difference arises because in Garcia's play the enemy of man is man, whereas in Synge's, the enemy is the mighty sea.

Dark turbulent waters that drag one away unwilling, symbolize deep passion throughout this play. The songs, the lullaby sung to the baby and the bride's description of her overriding passion, all hark back to this symbol.

The bride, a girl "caressed by fire of passion" describes her lover as "a dark river choked with brush that brought near me the undertone of its rushes," and explains that she sought "children, land and health" from the hero, "a little bit of water" to her burning soul.

By the dark turbulent water stood a horse, afraid to drink of it, and this is the horse that Leonardo rides throughout the play. In this way the poetic symbolism becomes even more an integral part of the action.

Marketa Mares' complete immersion in her character of the tempestuous passion-torn, Spanish beauty is fascinating to watch; and, through her shrouding veils, Jo Palfrey, symbolizing Death, is delightful in her witty insinuating characterization.

The other symbolic character, the Moon, was played with dramatic intensity by John Heath, who also designed the clever space-saving sets; but his strong voice was over-vibrant for expressing the cold passion of the silver-white moon.

Vivienne Chadwick as the mother, eaten up with bitterness, strong in her tragedy, determined in her righteousness, was wholly convincing for most of the play; but her denunciation of the bride's family became shrill and over-dramatic and, at times, her pace seemed to slow while she sought the words.

WRONGED WOMAN

Singing was essential to so poetic a play. A lusty bridal song was provided by the group of young woodcutters who also added joy to the wedding festivities and pathos to the search through the forest.

Leonardo's wife, Barbara Dunn, combined the natural timidity of a loving wife with the defiant insistence of a wronged woman, looked beautiful and sang in a pleasing husky voice.

A frighteningly stormy, turbulent and virile Leonardo was played by Barry Grimshaw but this character lacked depth in the more tender, poetic passages.

Kay Howard while lively and unselfconscious in all her movements was perhaps a little skittish for a servant woman of the age she portrayed and not wholly successful in her singing role.

Defensive Driving Course Set

One in every five drivers will be involved in a car accident within the next 12 months.

For most of these drivers it will be their first accident. So a good driving record is no guarantee against mishaps, Reg Mylrea, co-ordinator of adult classes, said today.

For this reason, the evening division of the Greater Victoria School Board is launching Wednesday a defensive driving course.

The first of the four weekly classes will be held in Room 203 at Oak Bay Junior High School and will start at 7:30 p.m. Cost of the course is $8 and registrations will be accepted at the door.

Some of the questions the sessions will deal with:

What to do when a tire blows? What is a preventable accident? What are the six defences against the two-car crash? What to do to avoid an intersection collision?

Several films are included in the program.

Highways To Declassify Mt. Newton

The department of highways wants to declassify Mount Newton Cross Road, between Patricia Bay highway and East Saanich Road, as a secondary highway.

The department has informed Central Saanich council the road should revert to municipal control.

At the same time, it indicated that it was prepared to reclassify as a secondary highway the route from Patricia Bay Highway to Keating Cross Road by way of Island View Road, Saanich Cross Road and Central Saanich Road.

"We are strongly opposed to taking over Mount Newton Cross Road," said Coun. Tom Michell, chairman of the public works committee.

He said the matter would be discussed further with the highways department.

350 at Recital Of 20th Century Church Music

More than 350 men, women and children attended a recital of 20th Century church music in Christ Church Cathedral Thursday night.

"Purpose of the recital was to reflect modern and even unusual trends in church music," said Richard Proudman, organist and choirmaster.

"People of all ages attended and the majority seemed to like what they heard."

Driver Suspended For Eight Months

Frank Leibel, 1387 Hillside, Friday was fined $500 and had his licence suspended for eight months when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Police investigating an accident at Bay Street and Cedar Hill Road Thursday evening noticed the accused driving in an erratic manner, the court was told.

He was followed and arrested.

The Crown referred to a previous similar conviction in 1961 but did not charge him as a second offender.

BENNETT Continued from Page 1

mineral rights reference to the Supreme Court which involved only B.C. because the federal government did not press the matter against the Maritime Provinces or others with coastlines.

He said despite criticism of his bookkeeping methods "who ends up in good financial shape, Ottawa or British Columbia?"

"It's certainly not Ottawa when they're putting on those taxes."

HEED HIS LESSON

Mr. Bennett said British Columbians should heed his history lesson "and I hope B.C. will never allow itself to be led by fuzzy thinkers again."

He added that he would "have more to say on this later" but indicated it would be at some subsequent speech in B.C. rather than at the two-day federal-provincial conference of finance ministers in Ottawa next week.

Mr. Bennett cut off reporters' questions to dismiss them because he said he had an appointment with his treasury board, currently reviewing proposed B.C. departmental expenditures for the next budget.

Earlier, Attorney-General Robert Bonner also criticized Mr. Sharp's indication there would be tax increases soon.

Mr. Bonner said they would be inflationary in themselves by "raising the cost of government."

Instead, he said, the federal government should actually cut back some of its current expenditures and not just trim programs.

A prime method of achieving this would be to cut back the number of federal civil servants, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation employees and defence department headquarters staff, he said.

Mr. Bonner estimated a 15 per cent reduction in personnel could be achieved over a period of a year by simply not replacing government employees who leave the service.

Big Bidder at Galleries 'Sorry,' but Can't Pay

NEW YORK (AP)—An art buyer says through his lawyer that he's "sorry" but he can't pay for 10 paintings on which he successfully bid $467,775 at the Parke-Bernet Galleries last Oct. 26.

The buyer was identified as Hunter Galloway, who resides in midtown Manhattan. He was a "mystery" bidder, unknown to art auctioneers and dealers, but no questions were asked until recently, when payment was not made to the gallery.

However, Galloway's lawyer, John M. Whichey, said Friday: "Mr. Galloway doesn't have the money to pay for the pictures, he doesn't have the resources to raise the money, and there's not much he can do except say he's sorry."

Galloway said he had no comment.

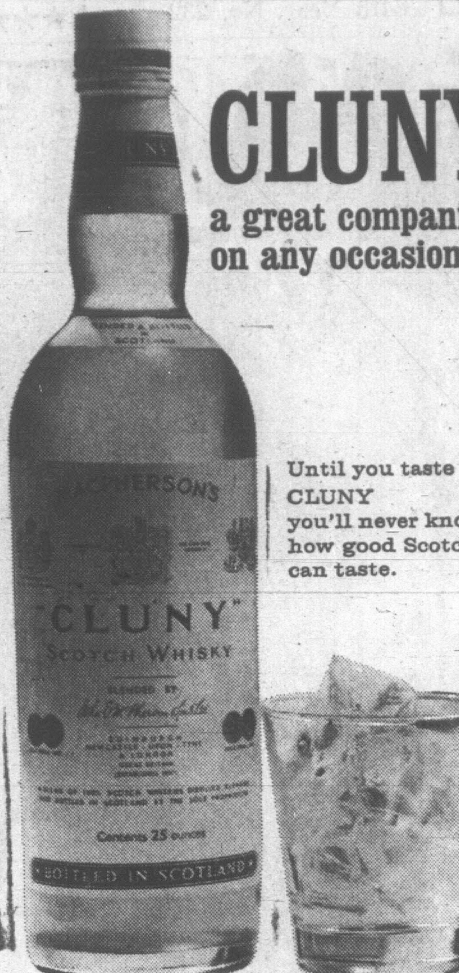

Whichey also said: "In all honesty we thought he would be able to get some time for the payment and during that period might be able to arrange a resale and with the proceeds end up with one picture he particularly wanted."

Usually, payments by successful bidders are made within 10 days or two weeks.

The works on which Galloway bid included a $250,000 Cezanne; another Cezanne for $40,000, three Chagalls and paintings by Dufy, Vlaminck, Rousault, Manzu and Diego Rivera.

ONLY A FEW GRUMBLE

Vets Accept Presence Of War Dissenters

By NORMAN CRIBBENS.

Once again we gathered at the Cenotaph to remember fallen comrades.

Once again we lauded them for their part in preserving our freedom. And one example of that freedom was a group of young men and women—not in the parade and not invited to the cenotaph—who demonstrated against war and the causes of war.

Twenty-two long-haired members of the Peace Action League (PAL) lined up alongside the armed forces assembled on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

They said nothing, but they displayed gruesome pictures of war victims and black-lettered slogans such as WAR DOES NOT END WAR.

"They should be kicked out," said one of the 1,500 veterans assembled in front of the cenotaph.

"They should be kicked round the block," said a second.

"No," said a third, "that is what the dictators would have done. We fought for freedom of opinion and these kids are part of it."

There was some difference of opinion whether PAL should be allowed to demonstrate during a service of remembrance. But no one asked them to leave and the service went on regardless.

It seemed as if there were more people on parade than there were watching and undoubtedly the public attendance was reduced by the fact the Cenotaph service was televised across British Columbia by the CBC.

Two large TV cameras took in the scene around the Cenotaph and combined, with the threat of heavy rain, to keep many at home.

But the rain never came. As the parade of veterans, servicemen and cadets assembled for the Two Minutes' Silence, the sun struggled through the grey clouds. A chill wind stirred the flags above the lawns of the Legislative Buildings, but it was never really cold.

The parade was marshalled by Lt. Col. J. W. Stegen of the RCN Fleet School, Esquimalt, and led by the band of HMCS Naden. David Huggins of the Royal Canadian Legion was in charge of the veterans.

Three More Victorians Get Medals
Three more Victorians have received the silver centennial medal issued by the office of the Secretary of State for services to the nation.

They are:
Miss Ruth W. Cowper, director of nursing at the Victoria Veterans' Hospital for 10 years, who has been with the department of Veterans' Affairs for 20 years and served as a nurse with the Canadian Army during the Second World War;
John I. Rutley, 63, of 905 Burdett Ave., who has been with the Canadian Hydrographic Service since 1930 and is officer in charge of the chart compilation section;
Capt. J. H. Matheson, 58, of 20 Olympia Ave., senior captain ashore with the hydrographic service. He started as a seaman in 1929 and rose to be captain of the CGS Marsbell and later of the CGS William Stewart.

In the parade were contingents from the Royal Canadian Navy, the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles; 155th Company, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps; the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's); the army, navy and air force cadets, the cadettes and wrenettes; the IODE; the Red Cross and the Women's Auxiliaries.

The beginning and end of the Two Minutes' Silence was marked by the firing of single rounds by the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery.

'Dear Heros: You Deserve To Be Kings'

Instead of an essay, the Grade Sixers at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic School were asked to write a Remembrance Day letter to their neighbors in the Veterans' Hospital.

The boys and girls turned out between 60 and 70 letters and each was delivered to a veteran on Saturday.

The vets were deeply touched by the quaint expressions of goodwill the letters contained.

Dear Veteran, Dear Soldier and Dear Hero.

One boy wrote: "You deserve to be kings," and a girl signed herself "Yours gracefully."

Lines, "They shall grow old as we that are left grow old," were recited by Clem Gill of the Pro Patria branch, Royal Canadian Legion.

Mr. Gill has fulfilled this office for more than 30 years.

He joined up in Victoria in 1914 and served overseas with the 7th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force.

Seated were placed near the Cenotaph for old soldiers who are no longer able to march in the parade, and one of them was occupied by Col. Robert Longridge, who served with the British Army in the First World War and the Canadian Army in the second.

Rev. Douglas Kendall, padre at the Veterans' Hospital, said there was no bus to the Cenotaph this year, but a number of patients attended a Remembrance Day service in the hospital chapel. Among them were 41 amputees and 65 wheelchair patients.

Wreaths were placed at the foot of the cenotaph by Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, Maritime Commander Pacific; David Groos, MP for Victoria, representing the government of Canada; and by Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston for Premier Bennett and the B.C. government.

Major Norman Featherstone placed a wreath on behalf of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, who was at the Cenotaph service in Vancouver; Lt. Col. H. C. Pitts represented the Canadian Army and Group Capt. Robert S. Turnbull, the RCAF.

Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria and the reeves of municipalities also placed wreaths.

After the service, the parade reformed and marched past a saluting base outside the Empress Hotel, where Rear-Admiral Charles took the salute.

Participating in the parade were the Princess Patricia's Association, the Black Watch Association, The Flags of Our Century Association and the Red Ensign and Union Jack Society.

At the Cenotaph, Mrs. William Gibb of 4103 Torquay Drive placed a wreath on behalf of the bereaved mothers of Canada. Her son, Sgt. Stanley Alexander Gibb, was killed in Italy on Oct. 22, 1944.

An innovation at this year's service was the presence of the destroyer escort HMCS Qu'Appelle in the Inner Harbor. She berthed at the Black Ball Ferry dock and sounded her siren in salute while officers and men took part in a service on the upper deck.

Sentries at the Cenotaph were PO Earl Sharpe (RCN), Sgt. Leonard A. Quinlan (Army), Sgt. David J. Lloyd (RCAF) and Cpl. Edmund A. Kathol (RCMP).

The service, conducted by Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean DD, followed its time-honored pattern. The lament, Flowers of the Forest, was played by Pipe-Major Frank Knight and the pipe band of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

The hymns, The Silent Tribute and O Valiant Hearts, were sung and the service closed with the Last Post, Reveille and the singing of O Canada and God Save the Queen.

DUMPED FROM CAR

Theft Victim Bound, Abandoned in Park

A 19-year-old gas station attendant, bound and gagged, was dumped from a car in Gorge Park early Sunday after being robbed of $185.

Police said Gordon Enquist, 3165 Earl Grey St., worked at the Pay-N-Save gas station, 430 Gorge Road East, until 1 a.m.

He locked up the station and set off on foot for his home with $185 in a pouch.

On Burnside between Wasana and Earl Grey, two men grabbed him and pulled him into a car. They blindfolded and gagged him, then tied his hands behind his back.

After about a 20-minute drive, they dumped him out of the car in Gorge Park.

Enquist worked himself free and ran to the nearest house where he telephoned police. He was not available for an interview today.

CORONER PROBING WOMAN'S FATAL FALL

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre has ordered a post mortem in the death of a 23-year-old woman who fell down a flight of stairs Sunday.

Mrs. Donna Jackson, Suite 10, 2558 Quadra Street, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital after she fell at 3576 Calumet early Sunday morning.

Mr. St. Jorre said he will decide whether to hold an inquest after he has the results of the autopsy and the report of a Vancouver analyst.

Lawyer Claims Fine Highest Ever Imposed

A fine of $25,000 against the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union for contempt of court is "the highest imposed on any union in Canada or possibly the British Commonwealth."

Vancouver lawyer Harry Rankin made this statement in B.C. Appeal Court here today when he appealed the fine against the union and the one-year jail terms passed on two of its officials—union president Steve Stavens, 62, and secretary-treasurer Homer Stevens, 44.

Today's hearing before Chief Justice H. W. Davey and two other justices of the B.C. Appeal Court was concerned only with the sentences against the union and its officials.

The appeals against conviction were lost last Tuesday when the court held that the union and the two officials were guilty of contempt of court. But a third man—business agent Jack Nichol—won his appeal against a one-year jail term.

Mr. Nichol appeared in court today as a spectator. Stavens and Stevens were unable to obtain release from Oakalla.

The convictions arose from an injunction issued last March in the Prince Rupert fishing strike, subsequent comments in bulletins and a union membership vote on whether the injunction should be obeyed.

Mr. Rankin referred to union president Stavens and secretary-treasurer Stevens as responsible members of the community.

Stavens, a native of Bergen, Norway, came to Vancouver in 1925 aboard a Norwegian freighter.

"He is not a professional trade unionist," counsel said, "but a man who has worked hard all his life—for the betterment of conditions among fishermen."

Mr. Rankin said Stavens was born at Ladner in 1923 and came of an old-established fishing family.

"He is a responsible man whose whole life has centred around the industry and he has helped to stabilize conditions within that industry."

The hearing ended at 1:25 this afternoon and judgment was reserved.

WANDERING FISHERMEN PAY $4,000

Four mainland captains of seiners caught fishing in a prohibited area have been fined $1,000.

Pleading guilty through counsel were Dick Anzulovich captain of the New Queen; Joseph Brusio, of the Laredo; Nicholas Jurinich, of the Miss Helen, and Olaf J. Wick, skipper of the Caamano Sound.

District court at the Law Courts here was told they were fishing in dense fog Aug. 14 on the westward side of a surfline imaginary boundary running across the western entrance to the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

They were picked up on a patrol vessel's radar.

City Alderman Seeks Long-Service Record

A second Victoria city council incumbent, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, today announced he will seek re-election.

Ald. Ian Stewart filed his nomination papers last week.

A third Victorian to announce his intentions is William Thomas, a Daily Colonist reporter for the past two years.

Ald. Edgelow, a 14-year council member and senior alderman on city council, will establish a record for consecutive service as an alderman if he is re-elected.

A. Cost of living index based on Vancouver prices shows figure of 129.4 in 1961 and 143.5 in June, 1967. The industrial composite of wages and salaries in B.C., show an increase from an average of $34.99 in 1961 and an average of $115.50 in June, 1967. Figures were provided by the B.C. Bureau of Economics and Statistics.

Q. How many Canadians are serving with U.S. forces in Vietnam?

'LUCRATIVE MARKET' AWAITS

N-Plants to Come in Compacts

Canadian scientists are making strides in developing a small and compact nuclear reactor power plant to meet a lucrative, untapped export market.

Such a plant could be dropped into sites in the far north and produce enough power to meet the supply now being used by a city the size of Vancouver.

It could also meet the needs of developing nations with power shortages and a commercially feasible nuclear power package would mean a valuable trade market, said John Barber today.

Mr. Barber is the public relations officer for the Whiteshell Nuclear Research Establishment, the federal government's $50 million centre 65 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

A staff of 675 has been concentrating on design of a portable plant in the six years the Whiteshell operation has been under way. About 1,200 persons will be working on the project by the time it reaches its planned capacity in 1972.

Solving the design problem lies not in the operation of reactors, said Mr. Barber, but in the development of materials to be used in their construction.

Researchers are hard at work discovering the critical materials which will make the small reactor financially feasible.

Canada has concentrated on reactors using natural uranium for fuel and heavy water as a moderator. American researchers have worked in a much broader research program but experiments now point to the Canadian formula as the one which may prove the most suitable.

'INCREASE NOT JUSTIFIED'

Premier Uses Parables To Blast Tax Hike

Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett used parables from "The Good Book" and his own budget speeches today to lash at proposed federal tax increases.

"You can't grow grapes from thorns, my friends," he told a 12-minute press conference that saw him hardly pause for breath as he poured out a stream of criticism at the Liberal party.

"There's only one problem in the country and that's the Liberals in Ottawa and (B.C. Liberal leader) Perrault here," he said.

"If (federal Finance Minister) Sharp said increase taxes 50 per cent on the workers, I suppose Liberal Perrault would say: 'Yes sir, yes sir.'"

"That shows how bankrupt they are... they don't listen to the Good Book."

Mr. Bennett said Ottawa has failed to heed the biblical injunction to use "our resources and talents to prosper."

"They've been leading the people up the garden path with spend, spend, spend and debt, debt, debt."

Mr. Bennett said a tax increase was not justified during a period of unemployment. "It's the wrong approach, it's the wrong medicine," he said.

Asked what the right medicine was, Mr. Bennett replied: "I've been prescribing it in every budget since I've been premier and finance minister."

"SIMPLE COMMON SENSE" "All these people can't understand simple common sense figures."

"This little boy who's been trying to undermine Mr. Pearson, this little boy (Registrar General) Turner says in Prince Rupert he doesn't understand the premier's financing."

"He certainly doesn't because it's deficit financing only for the Liberal party."

He inserted his version of a "hutshell" history of British Columbia into his comments on the tax increase proposal.

In 1871 the governors of B.C. "got itself into a financial jam. They owed $15 million which they couldn't pay... and because of this financial jam they had two choices — one was to join the U.S. and the other Canada."

"FED UP WITH THEM" "The British government got fed up with them and so they passed an act joining Canada."

"If British Columbia had been in a better financial position it could have made a much better arrangement (with Confederation)," he said.

Mr. Bennett said history repeated itself in the 1930s when a financially-overextended provincial government found it could not meet its debt obligations and so entered the Rowell-Sirois commission hearings "from a point of weakness."

"Then, in 1952, when Social Credit became government and I became government leader, the province was in terrible financial shape."

He said net debt exceeded net assets and there were great deficiencies in the province's hospitals, schools and transportation network which his administration quickly corrected.

DRAIN B.C. "We took British Columbia from a have-not province to the No. 1 have-province — and Ottawa wants everything we have, they want to drain B.C. like a goblet."

Mr. Bennett said this was proved by the recent off-shore Continued on Page 2

'Heat Lance' Burglars Get Huge Cash Loot

Cut Steel Door In London Co-Op

LONDON (AP)—Raiders broke into the London headquarters of a giant chain store co-operative during the weekend and ransacked 600 safety deposit boxes in an underground strong room, police said today.

'Direct Talks A Must'

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Israel declared today it would withdraw its forces from Arab territory only as part of a peace settlement.

Jordan replied that, unless the United Nations could obtain withdrawal of Israeli forces, it would be up to the Jordanian people themselves to "liquidate the Israeli aggression."

Positions of the two countries were outlined before the 15-nation UN Security Council by Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Jordanian Foreign Minister Abdul Monem Rifa'i in a face-to-face confrontation.

Despite the wide gap between Israeli and Arab views, Eban said a directly-negotiated peace settlement is not only possible but inevitable. He rejected Arab demands for an Israeli troop withdrawal, however, except as part of a peace settlement.

Rifa'i said withdrawal of Israeli forces to the lines existing before the June war must be the first step for peace.

"It is our strong and sincere conviction that the most fundamental requirement... for the creation of peace in the Middle East... is the withdrawal of Israeli troops from positions occupied during the six-day June conflict."

Eban charged that an Indian resolution demanding withdrawal of Israeli troops to the June 4 lines would prejudice Israel's position and was therefore unacceptable.

Eban said "there are no proposals tabled which give sufficient weight to the concept of negotiations and agreement."

The appointment of a UN representative for the Middle East could be useful "in bringing the parties together" but only if his directives "do not prejudice our policies or our negotiating position."

First reports estimated the haul at £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) but a store executive said this was high.

Police said the gang cut through a two-foot thick steel door and a grille with home-made thermal lances, to reach the boxes.

Detectives found jewelry scattered about the strong room, indicating the thieves were going strictly for cash.

CUTS CONCRETE

It can cut through solids — even concrete — with the tremendous heat of pure oxygen. Oxygen reacts with iron rods packed in a tube to produce heat up to 4,654 degrees.

The headquarters in the Stratford section of East London is the depository for huge sums spent by Britons in the various "co-ops" which function as a giant chain store system.

The master safe and some deposit boxes were burned down and rifled, police said.

The co-operative system is shared by the customers who can buy anything they need from breakfast cereal to a bicycle, have it listed in their stamps book and then receive discounts at various periods. Many small communities as well as the big cities have co-op stores.

The society, owned by its estimated 1,300,000 members, has an annual turnover of £50,000,000 ($150,000,000).

The co-op staff immediately began checking depositors to find out how much the looted boxes contained.

DEPOSITORS ANXIOUS

A society spokesman said: "We are getting phone calls from all over the area as people are anxious about their savings."

"Although there would be a considerable amount of cash in these safety deposit boxes, our members also left other securities such as the deeds of their homes and investments."

The strong room is deep inside a three-storey building on a busy street corner with a food hall on the ground floor and the co-operative's board room above it. The side is broken by an archway to a high walled parking lot which closed down at 1 p.m. Saturday and was not reopened until 6:30 a.m. today.

The archway bears a red and white lettered warning of dog patrols.

Island Hunting Mishap Takes Life of Boy, 13

3,000 Isolated By Typhoon

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — Rescue vessels at Guam waited for seas to subside today so they could go to the aid of 3,000 persons on a tiny island struck by Typhoon Gilda's 140 mile-an-hour winds Sunday.

All communications to the island of Rota, 40 miles north of Guam, were smashed by the storm and officials said it was almost certain that virtually all Rota's crops would be destroyed. The people support themselves by providing fresh produce to the big U.S. military installation on Guam.

A U.S. ship was abandoned and drifting in flames in the wake of the storm, but all 53 crewmen from it were saved in a dramatic rescue Sunday by a U.S. Navy destroyer and a passing cargo vessel.

The San Jose, owned by the United Fruit Co., was caught in the storm 100 miles from Guam.

Four persons were killed in holiday weekend accidents on Vancouver Island.

A 13-year-old boy was killed in a hunting accident; two women died in a head-on car crash and a girl died when struck by a car.

A bullet in the neck took the life of Edward George LeBus of Royston who was on a hunting trip with members of his family and friends.

The accident occurred about noon Sunday six miles east of Gold River.

Mrs. Bernice Constance Thom, 43, of 645 Beatrice Street, Vancouver, and her mother, Mrs. Kathleen McChristie, 74, of Sudbury, Ont., died Saturday afternoon when their car was in a head-on collision with one driven by Alex Crabbe of Chemainus, RCMP said.

The crash occurred on the Trans-Canada Highway two miles north of Duncan.

OVER-TAKING AUTO

"Police said Crabbe was overtaking another car when the collision occurred."

Crabbe, 27, a Chemainus radio station salesman and announcer, who had just completed a commentary on a cenotaph service, escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Stanley Thom, 47, suffered a broken leg and facial cuts in the crash. He was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital where he is in good condition.

Mrs. McChristie was visiting her daughter and son-in-law and was being taken on the tour of the Island.

Juliette Aline Dion, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dion, 500 Bruce Avenue, Port Alberni, died as she and three companions were walking abreast along Grandview Road about 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Miss Dion, who was dead by the time police arrived, was struck by a car driven by Darryl Pavan, 207 15th Avenue, Port Alberni. She was flung into the ditch by the impact.

A second hunting accident in the Gold River area sent a Port Alberni man to hospital.

Frank Wolf is in good condition in Campbell River Hospital suffering a neck wound which he received when hunting with his brother Martin and Antoine Rous.

Police said the accident occurred about eight miles north of Gold River about 7 a.m. Sunday when Rous fired at what he thought was a deer.

The three men had been in the area since Friday.

THROUGH ARTS, CRAFTS

Therapists Wage a War On Boredom, Depression

By TED GASKELL

No matter how philosophical a man might want to be, it's hard to fight off depression when confined to hospital after an active life.

In the Veterans' Hospital on Richmond Road, there are men incapacitated in war who are having a battle waged on their behalf by the Red Cross Arts and Crafts Centre.

This is another agency of Red Cross which is getting support from the United Red Feather Red Cross Appeal for $600,000.

This service is not only keeping the hands of these veterans busy, it's also helping them to fight boredom and depression.

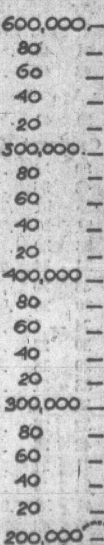

All manner of patients work on arts and crafts — heart cases, paraplegics, multiple sclerosis victims, men who have only the use of one hand. All are kept busy either in the basement workshop, or working on small projects in their hospital wards.

And they do beautiful work. Ice cream tubs become waste baskets covered with bright pictures from greeting cards. Copper work is excellently done. Leatherwork is popular for those who can use both hands. So is the making of stuffed toys.

But the eye-catcher is the hand weaving. Looms are set up by volunteers and the patients weave intricate and highly colorful patterns into place mats.

United Appeal

Put Him Up On Top

Official audited figure at noon today for the United Red Feather Red Cross Appeal campaign was $523,123 or 87.1 per cent of the required $600,000.

Weaving is excellent therapy because it can be done by a person who only has the use of one hand, says senior supervisor Miss Alma Gurton, who has been working in arts and crafts therapy for 17 years.

"It's also important because they are usually making something for members of their families. It's important to be doing something for somebody else."

"Down here they are away from their rooms and they are happier for it. They are also making friends with others," she said.

Sometimes it takes a long time to get a man out of his room. One man worked on small projects from his bed and it was two years before he could be encouraged to join the others in the workshop.

Not all the men are patients. They are veterans who have been in the hospital and go back to boarding homes after discharge.

"We welcome them. After being in hospital with other veterans they find their boarding home rooms lonely." Support of the centre comes from the Red Cross but the patients take the profit from their handicrafts after materials have been paid for.

The work is on display at the hospital and once a year the centre's auxiliary holds a tea and a veterans' crafts stall displays work done in the centre.

Low Productivity Blamed on Holidays

OTTAWA (CP) — Two extra statutory holidays in Canada were cited today as one reason for the difference in productivity between Canadian and U.S. farm equipment manufacturers.

Dr. C. L. Barber, a one-man royal commission inquiring into the Canadian farm machinery industry, said studies show Canadian productivity is 20 per cent or more below the U.S. The commission began a week of public hearings today.

J. D. Wormley, executive vice-president of Cockshutt Farm Equipment of Canada Ltd., at Brantford, Ont., said Canadian workers get 10 statu-ry holidays while U.S. workers get eight.

He declined to comment on a suggestion by Dr. Barber that lower wages in Canada allowed management to use practices that were less efficient than those in the U.S.

He quoted the fourth annual review of the Economic Council of Canada which says productivity is affected by the way the work is organized in a given plant, not by the plant's size.

If wage parity with the U.S. was demanded by Brantford workers, many changes might be made in the manufacturing process.

TIMER FOUND IN SHATTERED LUGGAGE

Airliner Lands Safely After Bomb Blast

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — High over Colorado, an explosion rocked an American Airlines jetliner with 78 persons aboard, shattering suitcases in the plane's rear baggage compartment.

The plane, on a non-stop flight Sunday from Chicago to San Diego, dropped about 600 feet over Alamosa, Colo.

After the Boeing 727 landed two hours later in San Diego, fragments of what appeared to be a home-made bomb were found in the luggage debris.

"There's no question about that," said Mel Zikes, a public relations officer for American.

"Parts of a crudely made bomb with a timing device—a face of a clock, some mechanism and a battery—were found."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation refused to comment except to say persons were being questioned.

None of the 72 passengers or six crew members was reported injured.

The passengers and crew heard and felt the jolt but were not immediately alarmed. Some attributed it to air turbulence.

There was no visible fright and no apparent realization of what had happened aboard the big, three-engine jet.

But when ground crewmen at San Diego's Lindbergh Field opened the cargo space they found it in shambles. At first they thought an animal carried as freight had broken loose and caused the mess.

Then FBI agents found the clock mechanism and a battery inside the compartment which appeared to be a crudely made bomb.

The FBI agents confiscated all the luggage on the plane, promising the passengers they would get it back today.

The airline cancelled a scheduled non-stop return flight to Chicago. When a check showed the sole damage to the baggage compartment was buckled fiberglass lining, the plane was flown to Dallas, Tex., for inspection and repair. Dallas is the maintenance headquarters for all of American's 727 jets.

ONLY A FEW GRUMBLE

Vets Accept Presence Of War Dissenters

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Once again we gathered at the Cenotaph to remember fallen comrades. Once again we lauded them for their part in preserving our freedom. And once again we were reminded that freedom was a group of young men and women—not in the parade and not invited to the cenotaph—who demonstrated against war and the causes of war.

Twenty-two long-haired members of the Peace Action League (PAL) lined up alongside the armed forces assembled on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

They said nothing, but they displayed gruesome pictures of war victims and black-lettered slogans such as WAR DOES NOT END WAR.

"They should be kicked out," said one of the 1,500 veterans assembled in front of the cenotaph.

"They should be kicked round the block," said a second.

"No," said a third, "that is what the dictators would have done. We fought for freedom of opinion and these kids are part of it."

There was some difference of opinion whether PAL should be allowed to demonstrate during a service of remembrance. But no one asked them to leave and the service went on regardless.

It seemed as if there were more people on parade than there were watching and undoubtedly the public attendance was reduced by the fact the Cenotaph service was televised across British Columbia by the CBC.

Two large TV cameras took in the scene around the Cenotaph and combined, with the threat of heavy rain, to keep many at home.

But the rain never came. As the parade of veterans, servicemen and cadets assembled for the Two Minutes' Silence, the sun struggled through the grey clouds. A chill wind stirred the flags above the lawns of the Legislative Buildings, but it was never really cold.

The parade was marshalled by Lt. Cdr. J. W. Stegen of the R.C. Fleet School, Esquimalt, and led by the band of HMCS Naden. David Higgins of the Royal Canadian Legion was in charge of the veterans.

Three More Victorians Get Medals

Three more Victorians have received the silver centennial medal issued by the office of the Secretary of State for services to the nation.

They are:
Miss Ruth W. Cowper, director of nursing at the Victoria Veterans' Hospital for 10 years, who has been with the department of Veterans' Affairs for 20 years and served as a nurse with the Canadian Army during the Second World War;

DUMPED FROM CAR

Theft Victim Bound, Abandoned in Park

A 19-year-old gas station attendant, bound and gagged, was dumped from a car in Gorge Park early Sunday after being robbed of $185.

Police said Gordon Enquist, 3165 Earl Grey St., worked at the Pay-N-Save gas station, 430 Gorge Road East, until 1 a.m.

He locked up the station and set off on foot for his home with $185 in a pouch.

On Burnside between Wasana and Earl Grey, two men grabbed him and pulled him into a car. They blindfolded and gagged him, then tied his hands behind his back.

After about a 20-minute drive, they dumped him out of the car in Gorge Park.

Enquist worked himself free and ran to the nearest house where he telephoned police. He was not available for an interview today.

Thieves also broke into a coin laundry over the weekend. Cash boxes were pried open on 13 washing machines at the White Swan Coin Laundry, 1811 Fort St.

Police report an estimated $75 to $100 in small change was taken.

The only machines left untouched were those facing the Fort St. window of the store.

The laundry was unlocked at 7 a.m. Sunday and the theft was not discovered until 8:15. Police surmise the robbery may have occurred in that period.

Vancouver lawyer Harry Rankin made this statement in B.C. Appeal Court here today when he appealed the fine against the union and the one-year jail terms passed on two of its officials—union president Steve Stavenes, 62, and secretary-treasurer Homer Stevens, 44.

In announcing the filing of his nomination papers Mr. Thomas said he is running on a "right to know" bylaw platform. If elected he stated he will work for the introduction of a bylaw which would guarantee the public a knowledge of proceedings of meetings of public boards.

At present regulations governing meetings of civic governments and committees are spelled out in detail by the provincial Municipal Act and can only be changed by the legislature.

Renovations Planned At St. Louis College

The financial burden of a proposed $1,500,000 Roman Catholic educational complex has resulted in the plan being drastically pared.

Under consideration had been a modern-co-educational high school on the grounds of St. Ann's Academy on Humboldt. It would have replaced the 103-year-old building which now houses St. Louis College.

An alternate proposal to spend about $500,000 to renovate the college has also been under consideration and this is the program that will now go ahead.

Msgr. Michael O'Connell, chairman of the committee studying the proposals, said today meetings had scaled down the ambitious high school plan to about $800,000.

But the parishes did not feel they could handle that sort of responsibility, he said.

The committee is now examining detailed plans for the complete up-dating of St. Louis College, including addition of a gymnasium.

'LUCRATIVE MARKET' AWAITS

N-Plants to Come in Compacts

Canadian scientists are making strides in developing a small and compact nuclear reactor power plant to meet a lucrative, untapped export market.

Such a plant could be dropped into sites in the far north and produce enough power to meet the supply now being used by a city the size of Vancouver.

It could also meet the needs of developing nations with power shortages and a commercially feasible nuclear power package would mean a valuable trade market, said John Barber today.

Mr. Barber is the public relations officer for the Whiteshell Nuclear Research Establishment, the federal government's $50 million centre 65 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

A staff of 675 has been concentrating on design of a portable plant in the six years the Whiteshell operation has been under way. About 1,200 persons will be working on the project by the time it reaches its planned capacity in 1972.

Solving the design problem lies not in the operation of reactors, said Mr. Barber, but in the development of materials to be used in their construction.

Researchers are hard at work discovering the critical materials which will make the small reactor financially feasible.

Canada has concentrated on reactors using natural uranium for fuel and heavy water as a moderator. American researchers have worked in a much broader research program but experiments now point to the Canadian formula as the one which may prove the most suitable.
